Conference Points Out Various Avenues To Heifer Health

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — For heifer growers to realize profit, they have to look closely at how the houses are designed, find ways to shorten calf-raising time, and concentrate on all aspects of herd comfort — from feeding to ventilation.

About 180 heifer growers from the region attended the two-day 1999 Professional Dairy Heifer Growers Northeast Regional Conference Tuesday and Wednesday at the Grantville Holiday Inn.

"Raising calves is like raising kids," said Curt Gooch, agricultural engineering specialist, Pro-Dairy Program in the Department of Agricultural and Biological Engineering at Cornell. "They are babies and have a lot of needs."

Several producers from New York and Pennsylvania spoke about their experiences with designing facilities and programs to maximize young herd health.

Steve Bechard, B&R Dairy in Chazy, N.Y., pointed to the design of his heifer "complex" that closely borders Lake Champlain, about 20 miles from the Canadian border. There, three large group complexes, totaling about 81,000 square feet, house 1,200 heifers, two months to springers, just three miles west of Vermont and 50 miles south of Montreal.

In the summertime, said Bechard, about a quarter mile away on each side of the farm are 500 boats from two different marinas. A large bunker area sits only about 100 feet away from the lake.

Environmental issues remain the farm's number one concern, stated Bechard.

"The issue of containing (any) leachate (from the bunkers) is number one on our list," Bechard said. New York state residents, he noted, "do not want these bunks here." Though the farm has come

Dairylea Cooperative Honors Progressive Dairy Farms

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Four Dairylea Cooperative Inc. farms were recognized for good management, quality production, and a positive approach to dairy farming, at the Dairylea Annual Meeting Family Banquet held October 12 in Liverpool, N.Y.

Martin Branigan of Richfield Springs, N.Y., Herrington Farms of Troy, N.Y., John Feusner of Troy, Pa. and Oakwood Dairy of Auburn, N.Y., received the Pride of Dairylea Award for their progressive operations.

Third generation dairyman Martin Branigan and his wife Glenice, have owned and operated Branigan Farm since they purchased the farm from Martin's father, Joseph V. Branigan, in 1968. Today, the farm encompasses 520 acres, growing 220 acres of hay and 95 acres of corn. The farm is home to a 62-head Holstein herd and 45 head of youngstock. Martin raises all his own replacements, all of which are AI bred, and uses Dairy One testing for milk weights and forage analysis. Martin has been very involved in soil conservation efforts to ensure the viability of his land. In a proactive effort to keep erosion and nutrient loss at a minimum, he has successfully utilized strip cropping, extensive clay tiling, and diversion ditch techniques for many years.

Herrington Farms, located in Troy, N.Y., is owned and operated by brothers Ken and Phil Herring-

Today Barbara Nissley becomes president of the Lancaster County Society of Farm Women, which is made up of 25 societies with 587 members. Her installation will take place at the Society's annual convention. Recycling Food Industry Wastes As Livestock Feed

Harold Harpster
Department of Dairy and Animal Science

Feed costs typically represent over 60% of the total expenses incurred in the production of meat and milk at the farm level. Historically, corn and soybeans have been the standard energy and protein feedstuff fed to farm livestock. Regionally, the price of these feedstuffs is higher in the Northeast placing Pennsylvania

CATTLE: Compared to Tuesday, slaughter steers and heifers sold firm to .50 higher. Buyers had to lower their standards a bit to fill orders, as high quality cattle are in short supply. A light run of Holstein steers sold .50- 1.00 higher. Slaughter cows sold weak to .50 lower, except for high boning yield Lean cows over 1200 lbs which traded firm to 1.00 higher. Slaughter bull demand was light and prices were .50-1.00 lower. Supply included 33 percent slaughter steers and 39 percent slaughter cows.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1145-1490 lbs 69.00-73.75. Choice 2-3 1130-1500 lbs 67.00-70.75. Select and low Choice 2-3 1075-1535 lbs 63.50- 68.00; 1525-1685 lbs 58.00-63.25. Select 1-2 1115-1460 lbs 58.00-64.75, returning to feed 975-1125 lbs 63.50-69.10.

CATTLE: Compared to last week's closing prices, slaughter steers and heifers sold firm to .50 higher. Supply continues tight and demand was very good as buyers were quick to bid on any cattle that appeared to have a chance of grading Choice, and were fairly lenient on some that may not. We are in the midst of a sellers market for those producers that have Choice and Prime cattle, and the shortage should last for at least another month. The boxed beef market moved slightly lower this week, but Western feedlots traded steady to firm. Midwestern cattle sold from 69.00-70.00 and 109.00 to mostly 110.00 dressed. Local Holstein steer trading was active and prices ended .50- 1.00 higher. A large run of slaughter cows closed mostly .50 lower this past week and slaughter bulls sold 1.00-2.00 lower in slow trading. Supply included 35 percent slaughter steers, 6 percent slaughter heifers, 41 percent slaughter cows, 4 percent bulls, with the balance feeders.

SLAUGHTER STEERS: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1145-1490 lbs 69.00-73.75, singles up to 74.25. Choice 2-3 1100-1500 lbs 67.00-70.75, high dressing 1-2 up to 72.50; few 1490-1555 lbs 66.00-68.00. NEW HOLLAND FEEDER PIG AUCTION FOR WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 3, 1999
FEEDER PIGS WEDNESDAY 670 LAST WEEK 491 LAST YEAR 1488
TREND: Compared to last week, feeder pigs were not well tested as very few returned to the farm. Slaughter pig prices were weak on a larger supply, with little or no competition from feeder buyers. Around 93 percent of supply was sold for slaughter. All pigs were weighed and graded on arrival and sold by the hundred weight.

NORTHEAST BROILER/FRYER PARTS - PART I FEDERAL-STATE

Trucklot buying interest was typically quiet for the middle of the week, however, optimism for the weekend was noted. Offerings of bone-in breasts began to loosen further, wings were mixed, and all other items were at least adequate. Retail and distributive movement continued no better than fair. The market tone was generally steady.

PRICES PAID PER POUND, ICE PACKED AND CO2 PACKED BROILER/FRYER PARTS, DELIVERED TO FIRST RECEIVERS IN POOL TRUCKLOT AND TRUCKLOT QUANTITIES.

NY Phil. Frozen Eggs

ATLANTA, GA.

EASTERN REGION FROZEN EGGS, OCTOBER 29, 1999. FEDERAL-STATE

Prices were unchanged on whites, irregular on sugared yolks but mostly higher. Whole and salt yolks were higher when compared to a week earlier. New trading was only fair for product that was generally adequate for needs. Liquid and frozen eggs (ingredients included) processed under federal inspection in the Eastern region for the week ending October 23, 1999 were unchanged from last week, and 2 % more than last year. Shell egg supplies were usually adequate for most trade needs.

NATIONAL EGG MARKET - AT A GLANCE

Prices were unchanged. The market tone was steady. Demand remained mixed from light to occasionally good, mostly moderate to fairly good, and was best where scattered features existed. Supplies of all sizes were generally adequate to close. Breaking stock offerings from regular sources were adequate to close, and demand for additional heavy nest runs was light to occasionally moderate. Light type fowl for this week were reported as generally sufficient, but next week's offerings were less than normal.

DELMARVA BROILER/FRYER MARKET. FEDERAL-STATE

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds slowed and was typical of normal midweek activity at most plants. Offerings were adequate to instances short. Live supplies were mostly moderate; weights varied, and were generally desirable. Processing schedules were moderate to moderately heavy. Less than trucklot asking prices were 1 cent higher at 56 to 68 cents. Trade sentiment was steady, instances firm. In the parts complex, inquiry tapered on the breasts items and supplies were at least adequate, particularly boneless skinless. Leg quarters were fully adequate. Wings were clearing but some sellers noted resistance to higher prices.

National Grain Market

St. Joseph, MO
Wed Nov 03, 1999

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

Daily National Grain Market Summary

Grain and soybean bids extended gains, today, as export optimism and and some fund buying offered strength. Wheat 1 to 9 cents higher. Corn 2 to 4 cents higher. Sorghum 4 to 5 cents higher. Soybeans 1 to 4 cents higher. Export sales have been slow for wheat this week, however, indications that Pakistan and possibly Egypt will soon be in the market pushed prices higher. Taiwan is tendering tomorrow. Dry weather in southern Plains regions gave support to winter wheat bids. Corn bids were slightly higher due to good export sales this week and some fund buying on the Board. Private sources showed a small increase in U.S. corn production is likely, which limited gains. Slight gains in soybean bids were due to stronger meal and oil prices and higher corn and wheat bids. Soybean production is expected to be lowered by USDA next week, according to private sources.

Oklahoma City Feeder Cattle

Oklahoma City, OK
Wed Nov 3, 1999
USDA-OK Dept Ag Market News
Oklahoma National Stockyards - Weekly Cattle Summary

Compared to last week: Feeder steers and heifers 2.00-3.00 higher. Steer and heifer calves 3.00-6.00 higher, with light weight steers 8.00-10.00 higher. Demand very good for calves and feeders. General rains of 1-3 inches fell over bulk of the state this past weekend. Rains limited cattle movement but renewed interest in calves. Bulk supply average quality calves in moderate to fleshy conditions. Weigh-ups average to full. Slaughter cows and bulls weak to 1.00 lower. Demand moderate from packers but good for cows returning to the country. Total of 480 cows and bulls sold with 45 percent to packers. Receipts this week 6,350; last week 12,590; last year 8,924. Supply consisted of 39 percent yearlings and calves over 600 lbs; 53 percent calves under 600 lbs; 8 percent cows and bulls. Heifers comprised 49 percent of feeder and calf supply. Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis.

In the dairy business, income over feed cost is the name of the game. Pro-Lix liquid feed supplements offer dairymen the means to maximize this value while getting the most from their cow's natural abilities.

Pro-Lix liquid feed supplements are concentrated sources of just what ordinary feeds lack: protein, energy, vitamins, minerals -- everything animals need for economical milk production and growth.

For replacement heifers, Pro-Lix means faster maturity and assurance that they'll get to the milking herd on time. If you trust your heifers to forage alone, they might not make it (Bouvatec Is Available)

For lactating cows, the nitrogen content of Pro-Lix means plenty of protein available for milk production and growth

Finally, for dry cows, Pro-Lix not only helps maintain their health during the dry period it prepares them for the next lactation. The Ca:P ratio in Pro-Lix helps control milk fever, while the Vitamin E and selenium aids in clean-up after the birth of a calf.

Best of all, Pro-Lix works with all types of pasture grass or forage, as a free-choice supplement, a top-dressing, or a ration mix.

The payoff is healthier animals and economical production, all year round!

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

NOVEMBER 8-14, 1999

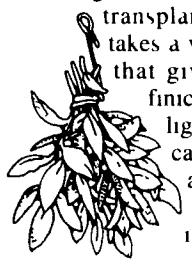
HERBS GALORE

Have you harvested your winter's store of fresh herbs to dry? Consider some kitchen window boxes to coax those last hardy herbs into a longer life Sage, rosemary, oregano, mint, and thyme all transplant well, if done with care. Parsley takes a very deep pot to preserve the taproot that gives the plant its lifeline Basil is finicky inside, unless you've got "grow" lights to help it along A kitchen garden can be a thing of beauty, however, and a lingering touch of fragrant foliage can bring summer memories back into the darkest days



O! mickle is the powerful grace that lies in herbs . . .

– William Shakespeare

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Chop fresh herbs and freeze in ice cube trays, with a little water, for later use.

HERB-STUFFED PASTA

8 ounces jumbo pasta shells
8 ounces cream cheese
4 ounces ricotta or cottage cheese
2 eggs, beaten
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons chopped fresh chives
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
2 tablespoons chopped fresh sage, basil, tarragon, OR thyme salt and pepper, to taste
1/2 cup bread crumbs

Cook pasta as directed, do not overcook Drain and set aside While pasta is cooking, combine cheeses, then mix in eggs and seasonings Stir in bread crumbs last Stuff each pasta shell with a bit of the cheese-herb mixture Arrange stuffed shells in a greased, covered casserole and bake at 400° F for 10 minutes, until filling is hot

Makes 6 servings.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

If the geese at Martin's Day (Nov. 11) stand on ice, they will walk in mud at Christmas.

If it is at St. Martin fair, dry, and cold, the cold in winter will not last long.

A Bug In Your Farming Operation

We now hear a lot of talk about the potential problems mechanical devices that are operated by computers and their chips may have on New Years day They call it the Y2K problem

With the farmer's propensity to bull through most any problem, it is no surprise that many of you tough thinkers believe the Y2K problem will not have much affect on your farming operation. But researches from land-grant universities and others who have studied the potential problem say we need to be on guard As Dr Mike Adelaine, extension computer specialist at the South Dakota State University extension service, says, "Y2K will happen and the best approach is an informed approach "

If it is mechanically controlled and does not have a battery, solar or electrical power, Y2K is probably not an issue. But if it is a critical part of your operation and is not mechanically controlled you should check it out.

Technology has provided effective and reliable tools to agribusiness and farming enterprises. Some of these tools involve software programs, integrated circuits, and microprocessor chips Unfortunately, some of these devices were designed without a way to recognize the upcoming date change to the year 2,000. David A. Martin, extension education at the University of Maryland, says you need to develop strategies to reduce the risk of potential problems in your business.

Many of the plans you make are similar to how you might prepare for any potential disruption such as a hurricane, tornado, or a major spill of toxic chemical. The difference in this case is that unlike a natural disaster where you never know when it will come, we know when the Y2K bugs will hit us.

Equipment systems around the farm could malfunction. Suppliers, utilities, or vendors you rely on could have short-term difficulty in providing services to your operation On a global scale, there is some possibility that other countries could have Y2K problems that affect their ability to import our products which would lower demand and lower the price for a commodity.

We would be inclined to say Y2K is a lot of hype. But then we remember just how much of our production and transportation equipment and vehicles depend on computer chips to keep them running. So you may want to read the article in section A of this issue from the University of Maryland entitled Planning Strategies for Y2K in Agricultural Businesses. Or you can go to South Dakota State University's Internet page on the subject at http://www.abs.sdstate.edu/ecs/home/y2k.html and download a quick checklist for you beef, dairy, grain, or swine operation. We hope there is no problem. But since we have fair warning exactly when this potential problem may overtake us, we should not ignore it. We think it is best to have a contingency plan in place should Y2K becomes a bug in your farming operation on 12:01 a.m., January 1, 2,000.

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Plan Buffer Areas

Grass, shrub and tree buffer plantings offer a variety of advantages to the farm and environment, according to Robert Anderson, Lancaster County Extension Agronomy Agent Vegetated buffers slow water runoff and trap sediment, fertilizers, pesticides, bacteria, pathogens and heavy metals This reduces the potential of these things reaching and polluting surface water

Buffers help to trap snow and rain resulting in an increase of water infiltration Buffers which contain shrubs and trees help to protect farm buildings and livestock from harsh winter winds and weather while providing wildlife habitat Buffers along streams, roads and in areas where soil erosion is a problem can add beauty to the farm while helping the environment

With increased public pressure to improve water quality, farmers voluntarily planting buffers now could reduce future and more costly regulations The choice is up to you

To Maintain Buffers

Buffers need special care in order to maintain their effectiveness

Earl Hess, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, makes the following suggestions when farming around buffers. Bring row crop patterns perpendicular into the buffer

Use the buffer as a turning area rather than planting end rows along side the buffer Inspect buffers frequently for areas that are eroding and needing reseeding or other repairs Do not encroach with tillage or planting equipment Do not use buffers as roads or field lanes.

When crossing buffers, lift tillage equipment and turn off spray equipment Fertilize, re-seed and replant as needed For more information on buffers, contact the Natural Resource Conservation Service office serving your county

To Look At Trusts

One of the major issues facing many farmers is how to transfer the farm from one generation to the next There are many tools available to you

Every estate has social capital Social capital is that part of your total wealth that you have earned but are not allowed to keep You are not allowed to keep it because the Unified Federal Gift and Estate Tax Law decrees that once your total wealth exceeds $600,000 ($1,200,000 for married couples) a portion of the excess must be shared with society That portion which you must share is your social capital

Through the use of trusts you are able to keep the social capital in your community instead of sending it to Washington D C for the federal government to decide how to best spend it The estate of the late Joe Robbie paid 55 percent federal estate tax which forced the family to sell the Miami Dolphins football franchise in order to pay the tax

The estate of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis included a charitable trust that reduced the estate taxes to less than two percent on the transfer of $164 million for the ultimate benefit of her grandchildren You do not need to be wealthy to take advantage of these opportunities Contact your attorney and discuss trusts and see how you may use them to keep your wealth in your family and community

Feather Prof's Footnote
"Small opportunities are often the beginning of great achievements "

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

When You Lose A Moses

Nov. 7, 1999

It was about 20 years ago that I stood on Mt. Nebo, the traditional spot from which it is believed Moses last beheld the Promised Land. We had timed our arrival there so that sundown was just a few minutes away. As the sun quickly descended across the horizon, we were able to see it shining on the roofs and towers of Jerusalem some 30 miles due west. What a glorious sight – for Moses and for us.

Mt. Nebo is a mountain in what is today the Kingdom of Jordan. If Moses ascended this mountain, he saw magnificent vistas of the Promised Land: to the north, the high mountain country of southern Gilead; to the west across the Dead Sea, our guide pointed to the desert oasis of Ein-Gedi and the mountains south of Hebron; to the east, we saw the mountainous country of Ajlun and Jerash, and running straight from the silvery Dead Sea to the Sea of Galilee, the Jordan River Valley. If this isn't where Moses looked over into the Promised Land, it should have been!

Moses would not cross the Jordon into the Promised Land. This man who was instrumental in their escape from Egypt and their journey across the Sinai Peninsula was about to breathe his last Whatever resistance the people of Israel had given Moses, whatever discontent they had murmured against him, now they were aware that they were about to lose this great leader whom God had sent them. Just as many had dispaired under his leadership, now the whole company of Hebrews dispaired at the loss of his leadership.

INDISPENSABLE MAN

This man whom many had opposed and resisted was now seen as the indispensable man. That is a very human reaction We become so dependent upon the leadership of a person that when we are about to lose that person we are afraid that the cause is lost. No one will be able to take his or her place. It is true; many leaders are hard to replace. When it is obvious that they must relinquish their leadership we are certain no one can take their place. There could be only one Moses.

Moses knew what they were thinking and his last act of leadership was to put the situation into perspective for them. Summoning Joshua, Moses said to the people of Israel, "Be strong and of good courage; for you shall go with this people into the land which the Lord has sworn to their fathers to give them; and you shall put them in possession of it" (31:8). Moses passed the mantle of leadership to Joshua.

After Moses died, Joshua led the people into the Promised Land and they learned that, although there had been only one Moses, there was also only one Joshua. They were two different people with different gifts and graces, but they shared something in common: the realization that it was the Lord who was leading them. "It is the Lord who goes before you," Moses told them, "he will be with you, he will not fail you or forsake you; do not fear or be dismayed " (31.8)

IT IS THE LORD WHO LEADS

I remember when President Franklin Roosevelt died In those days he was their only President I ever knew. How could anyone replace him? When Harry S. Truman was sworn in as his successor, I was certain this man could not do the job. Totally unlike F.D R., Harry Truman led us in a different way and in retrospect many regard Truman as a great President. But at the time hardly anyone thought he could do the job.

This is one of the mistakes we make in church, community and nation – we place too much expectation and faith in the man or woman in office. Of course we need the best leadership we can find, but we must remember what Moses told the people of Israel "It is the Lord who goes before you. he will be with you, he will not fail you or forsake you, do not fear or be dismayed "

MILK WANTED
Lanco Dairy Farmers Co-Op Inc.
needs 200 more dairy farmers to help grow out new contracts. We are run by a local non-salaried board. We do not take equity out of your check. We have 6 excellent local haulers in Lancaster, Chester, Lebanon, Berks, Centre, Dauphin and Eastern Md
New 30 Day Contracts
Let us show you how to take control of your milk supply with a better bottom line
For more information, call

ATTENTION DAIRYMEN
LANCO Dairy Farms Co-Op Inc. is now a marketing division of Allied Federated Co-Op's of Caton, New York. We Would Like To Ask You These Questions: Are you tired of...
1. Mega-Merger's and Consolidations?
2. Lower Milk Prices?
3. Supporting High Debt Load Co-Op's with Your Farm's Milk Check As Their Banks Equity?
4. Paying High Salaried Executives & Directors?

Let Us Show You How You And Your Neighbors Can Put A Load Of Milk Together And Market Through Lanco! And Gain A Higher Bottom Line. Our Markets Are Wide Open And Waiting To Take Your Milk At A Higher Premium Than You Receive Now. Find Out Why Other Processors Are Calling Us For More Milk And Are Looking For Better Choices To Feel More Secure With A Local Milk Supply. The Processing Industry Is Not Happy Either.

A Special Information Update Meeting Is Planned
Nov. 29th 7:00 PM E.S.T. at John K. Kauffman's Farm

Safe-Guard®

Fenbendazole

Fenbendazole specializes in the exceptional control of internal parasites It was designed to set the standard for internal parasite control Only Safe-Guard® controls the nine most damaging cattle parasites Including lungworm, hookworm, and most immature worm growth stages*

Fast Acting. Fenbendazole rapidly stops egg shedding to prevent pasture recontamination for maximum results.

Convenient. Whether or not you want to handle your cows, there's a fenbendazole dewormer formulation for you.

Strategic. With fenbendazole you can strategically treat your dairy cows on a seasonal or individual basis, whichever you think is best for your herd.

Overall strategic objectives

- Allow replacements to attain maximum growth and development to reach breeding size unhampered by parasites.
- Maintain heifers as parasite-free, to prevent infection of the milking herd.
- Maintain control measures for all cows exposed to any parasites
- Allow lactating cows to attain maximum lactation potential possible with their genetics and nutrition.
- Avoid wasting deworming dollars on cows in late lactation, dry or already parasite-free

Harvest Ends With New Offerings From John Deere

MOLINE, Ill. — As the last loads of grain come out of the field, many farmers immediately begin to look at next year. For some, next year may include a new equipment purchase.

However, in 1999, the headlines all are screaming doom and gloom for agriculture, which would seem to dampen farmers' buying enthusiasm for new equipment. Still, at least one company's actions show it believes agriculture's future is bright.

John Deere recently made it clear that it expects better times ahead for agriculture as it announced one of its most aggressive new product introductions in years. Among other items, John Deere rolled out new combines, tractors, and skid steer loaders.

Such an aggressive launch seems to go against the public television documentaries that have aired, the special hearings on Capitol Hill, and the websites, such as www.farmcrisis.net, set up to document the struggles in agriculture. But John Deere spokesperson Barry Nelson explained that the timing of this launch makes sense given the company's philosophy of bringing new and better products to market to increase farming efficiency, which, in turn, reduces the cost of production.

"When prices are low, the best way to compete is to cut the cost of production. These new machines help farmers do that," Nelson emphasized.

John Deere seems to be on to something if the reaction at Husker Harvest, in Grand Island, Neb., in mid-September is any indication. Farmers showed up by the thousands during the three-day show to check out new equipment demonstrated by John Deere. This was the first public viewing of many of these machines in action, including the new STS (single tine) separation combines.

Ron Moron, senior sales and service representative, said the new 50 Series combines, including the STS models, allow farmers to meet the demands of today's farming operation, which includes harvesting in tough conditions, such as green-stemmed beans, and squeezing more acres into each day's harvest.

"These machines are designed to provide more comfort and control, require less service and be more productive," he said. "Easy servicing, increased capacity and improved grain quality are just a few of the advantages farmers will appreciate on the new 50 series."

In addition to the new combines, Deere began selling a new line of high-power tracked tractors. The new 9000T Series tractors were unveiled at farm shows in 1998, and they became available for purchase this year. These tractors feature John Deere 12.5 L Powertech engines, a wide 106-inch tread spacing for greater stability, 111-inch wheelbase for added traction and flotation, a large 60-inch drive wheel to reduce track slippage, and a choice of two track sizes: 30 and 36 inches. They also can be ballasted to 50,000 pounds.

Kelly Granatier, division manager for John Deere 9000 Series 4-Wheel-Drives and the new 9000T Series tractors, said, "We brought in farmers from across the country who use tracked tractors to get their input, suggestions, critiques, and comments to make sure that the 360-hp 9300T and 425-hp 9400T tractors would fit their needs.

"Customers wanted more power to the ground, hill-hugging stability, better traction, and the ability to work light in the spring, heavy in the fall. Farmers tell us from their experience this fall that we've met their needs. We want to continue our philosophy of giving customers a choice between tires and tracks. These two new tractor models help round out our large horsepower tractor lineup."

Recent press releases from John Deere show the company is realistic about its sales prospects given the current farm economy, and it expects a decline in demand for retail farm equipment of 30 to 35 percent in North America this fiscal year and declines of 10 to 15 percent in other major markets.

However, Nelson said the number of new offerings in 1999 demonstrate the company's commitment to agriculture and its focus on bringing the best products to market. "John Deere has always been committed to the agricultural market, and these new introductions should leave little doubt about our intentions for the future," he concluded.

Big Operators Look Toward Improved Harvest

Course Offers Tractor Renovation Tips, Special Financing

MOLINE, Ill — For many farmers, the months between harvest and planting offer time to service equipment and make any necessary repairs or upgrades. This year, the task is made easier through an innovative new program.

Now through 2000, John Deere dealers will host tractor renovation clinics The clinics include courses on preventative maintenance and upgrading older tractors to current standards of comfort, convenience and reliability.

The "Dress Up a Deere Friend™" clinics include information useful for any row crop tractor but focus on John Deere 30, 40 and 50 Series models. "More than 400,000 of these models were produced from the early 1970s to the mid-1980s," said Jerry Burau, manager, aftermarket sales for John Deere. "Thousands of older tractors still provide reliable service. These clinics help owners bring older models up to modern standards for performance, safety and convenience."

Features improved over the last two decades include lighting, electrical systems, air conditioning, cab comfort, and safety features such as convenient handles and steps, Burau explained.

The clinics include programs on preventative maintenance and detailed demonstrations on rejuvenating older model tractors with upgrades such as:

- New lighting
- Safety handles
- Front fenders
- Larger, better steps
- Modern air conditioning
- New air-suspension seating
- Electrical systems, including power strip convenience outlets and 7 pin connectors
- Inside mirrors
- Rear windshield wiper
- Improved sound system, including stereo radio and new speakers
- Hydraulic control valves compatible with modern equipment
- New cab upholstery kits

"Many comfort, convenience and safety upgrades can be made by tractor owners themselves," Burau said. "The clinics provide a detailed explanation of improvements, ranging from upgraded lighting and mirrors up to ozone friendly R134A air conditioning replacement."

If extensive engine repairs are needed, dealers are able to overhaul the engine or install a RemanSelect™ engine. RemanSelect engines are completely remanufactured to exact specifications using genuine John Deere replacement parts and manufacturing processes. RemanSelect engines carry a one-year, unlimited-hour warranty and are available through John Deere dealers.

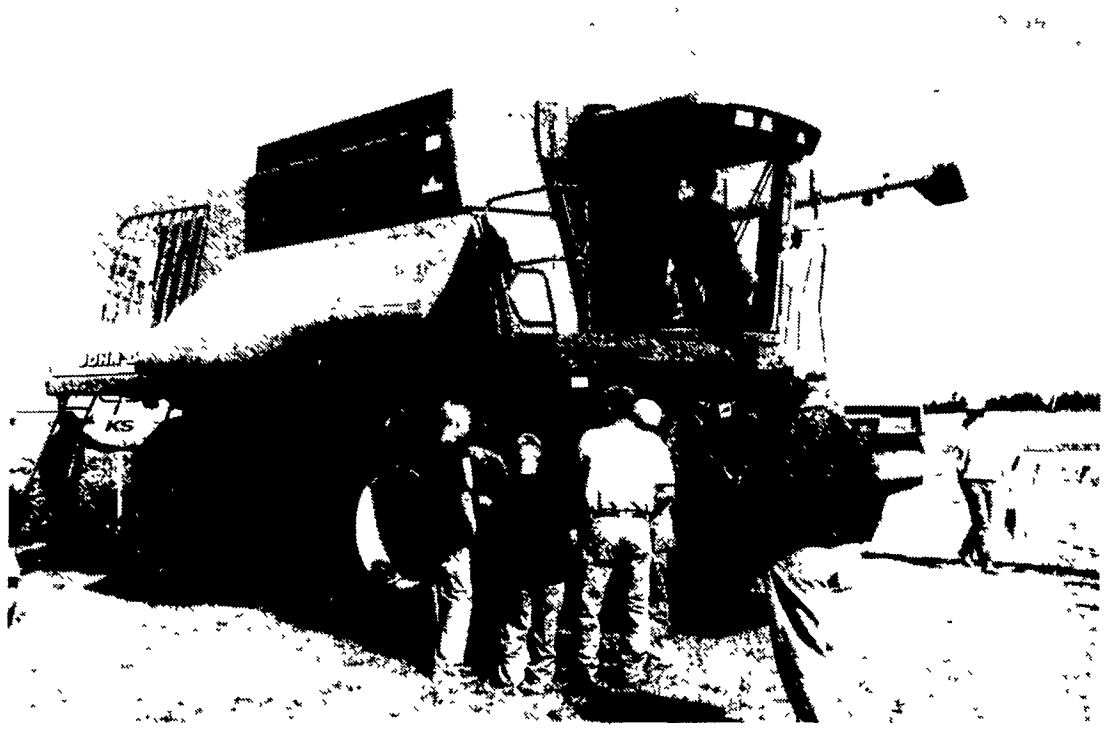
Special Financing

Owners who take part in the clinics are eligible for special tractor renovation financing from dealers who offer Farm Plan™ or AgLine™ financing plans. This special financing includes no payments and no interest through March 2000 on purchases of tractor parts.

"With the current farm economy, we offer our customers several choices depending on their operational needs," Burau said. "John Deere dealers not only provide a complete line of new and used tractors but also help farmers renovate their older tractors with tractor renovation kits. We want customers to be as happy with their older tractors now as they were the day they purchased them."

To receive more details on the "Dress Up a Deere Friend" clinics, contact your local John Deere dealer, check out the new website on www.deere.com or look directly at www.deere.com/parts/deerefriend/index.htm.

Now through the year 2000, John Deere dealers will host tractor renovation clinics.



The machines demonstrated at Husker Harvest are designed to provide more comfort and control.

Just The Facts

As harvest winds down, the numbers begin to roll in. Here's a few statistics and projections taken from recent reports released by the National Agricultural Statistics Service and the Economic Research Service.

- Soybean production is forecast to reach a record level for the second straight year at nearly 2.8 billion bushels.
- Corn yields are forecast to be the third highest on record.
- Winter wheat yields averaged over 47 bushels per acre, a new record.
- Old crop corn stocks September 1 were up 37 percent from 1998.
- Old crop soybean stocks September 1 were up 74 percent from1998.
- Stored wheat September 1 was at its highest level since the 1987-88 marketing year.

New STS Combines Round Out John Deere Combine Family

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. — Husker Harvest, conducted outside Grand Island, Neb., was the site of the first public viewing of demonstrations of a new line of combines from John Deere.

The Single Tine Separation (STS) combine models from John Deere employ a patented harvesting concept unlike any other harvesting concept, said Don Yarbrough, engineering manager, John Deere Harvester Works Product Development. "Its patented design and unique features make it superior to conventional rotary concepts."

For example, he explained, conventional rotaries typically feature a top cage that maintains the same diameter throughout the length of the rotor. "As a result, crop material tends to compress as it passes through the threshing and separating sections. In a moist or green-stem crop, the material twists, ropes, and may even plug. Separation is inhibited and horsepower requirements are increased.

"The unique STS design, however, features a three-step outer cage. The diameter of the top cage increases in the threshing and separation sections. So, material has room to expand as it accelerates through the separator module. This creates a pull and release effect that offers two big advantages," Yarbrough added. "First, as the crop material expands, grain trapped in the crop mat is freed. Grain savings is significant. Second, the free-flowing material places less torque on the tine separator, so less horsepower is required to maintain tine separator speed."

Other features of the new STS combine models include:

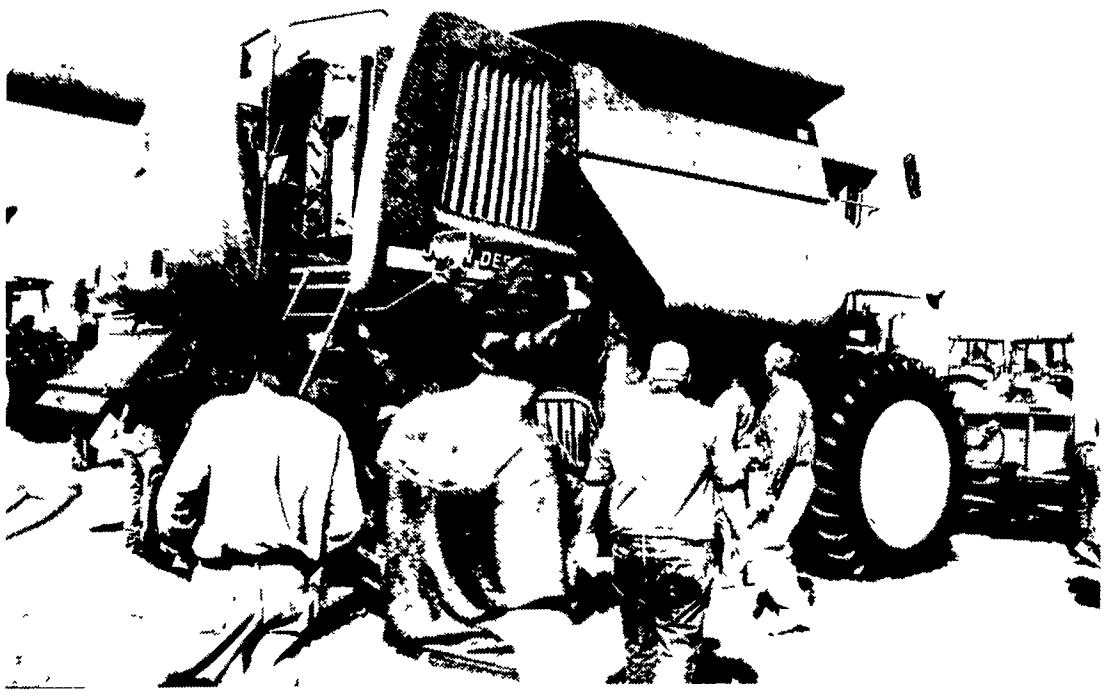
• Feeding performance - especially in moist, green conditions – is one of the biggest drawbacks of conventional rotary designs. Yarbrough said STS combines feature a new Feed Accelerator and Stone Trap System to provide excellent feeding performance in all crops and conditions.

• A new TriStream™ design directs material into the feeding section in three paths, providing more even loading of the feed section and reducing the incidence of slug feeding.

• To provide optimum grain quality, STS combines feature unique threshing elements that gently thresh and help convey material to the separating section. These threshing elements are made of an advanced austempered carbidic iron casting that provides excellent abrasion resistance and extra-long wear life.

• The STS Combines also feature the DynaFlo™ cleaning system, which was designed to closely match cleaning capacity with the increased material loads of STS combines. DynaFlo cleaning is highly efficient and provides convenient adjustments.

Yarbrough said the new combines have undergone field tests, which show that STS combines provide up to 25 percent more capacity in small grains compared to conventional rotaries. The advantages can be even greater in corn and soybeans.



The Single Tine Separator (STS) combines were a hit at the Husker Harvest in Grand Island, Neb.

New Auction Web Site Available For Used Farm Equipment

MOLINE, Ill. — Shopping for used farm equipment after harvest is now just a mouse click away.

A new web site, machinefinderauction.com, launched by Remarketing Services of the John Deere North American Agricultural Marketing Center, allows farmers to bid on used equipment posted for auction by John Deere dealers. The site is designed to complement MachineFinder.com, John Deere's used-equipment search site.

The site is designed to give farmers access to a greater number of choices when they look to purchase used equipment, said Bill Holstun of John Deere. The role of John Deere in the site is to serve as an intermediary or facilitator — building a marketplace for buyers and sellers of used agricultural equipment.

"This new service allows us and our dealers to focus on the business of selling equipment, instead of running an auction site," Holstun said. "This site helps new and existing customers find the best deals possible on used equipment, while giving our dealers one more distribution channel."

Since dealers take various brands of equipment on trade for new and used John Deere machinery, the auction is not to be limited to John Deere equipment. Most equipment is agricultural machinery, but some lawn-and-garden and construction equipment also is available. The site is now in its infancy, but eventually customers will have a choice of virtually thousands of pieces of equipment to fill their everyday needs.

Deere STS combines feature unique threshing elements. Visitors see optimum grain quality.

• Low commodity prices will drive 1999 net farm income below the estimate for 1998, but will still approach the longer-term decade average.

• Not only has the United States harvested large crops for several years, but so have other major producing countries, including the European Union, Canada, Australia, Brazil, and Argentina.

• 1999 net farm income, forecast at $43.5 billion will fall below the estimate of $44.1 billion for 1998. On average, cash receipts are forecast to be about $4.3 billion below those of 1998, the lowest since 1994.

• Loan deficiency payments are forecast at over $5.6 billion for 1999. In 1998, about $1.8 billion of direct payments were for loan deficiency payments.

• Direct payments are forecast at $15.5 billion for the 1999 calendar year, up from $12.2 billion in 1998. 1999 payments are projected to be second only to the 1987 high of $16.7 billion.

• Livestock cash receipts are expected to reach their second highest level of the 1990s, rising more than $1.5 billion from 1998. With the exception of hogs, livestock receipts are generally improving.

• Farm prices for corn are expected to remain weak in 1999/2000. The average farm price is expected to be near the 1998/99 forecast of $1.95 per bushel.

• Domestic corn use will likely set another record in1999/2000, while U.S. corn exports will decline because of increased competition from China, continued large exports by Argentina, and declining world trade.

• U.S. agricultural exports are forecast to recover modestly in fiscal year 2000 to $50 billion, the first increase since 1996, and a 2 percent gain from 1999.

All-New John Deere 50 Series Combines

The Power of Choice

Introducing the new family of John Deere 50 Series Combines. Now, no matter what crops, hybrids, or varieties you grow – or what conditions you face – you'll find the perfect machine with the capacity and performance to overcome your toughest harvesting challenges.

Four new cylinder/walker models – the 9450, 9550, SideHill 9550, and 9650 – continue John Deere's harvesting reign. With their big capacity, top performance, proven dependability, plus all-new comfort and control, they're sure to continue as the first choice of growers and custom cutters throughout North America.

The all-new 9650 STS and 9750 STS Combines are the newest additions to the John Deere family. The revolutionary stairstep design of Single Tine Separation provides more room for higher capacity and more-thorough separation, while reducing power consumption and plugging. It's a difference that blows conventional rotary designs right out of the field.

Get the most out of your harvest, and put more dollars on your bottom line. Sit down with your John Deere dealer today to choose the best model for your operation.

Every Four Years, 4-H Livestock Team Experiences Dream Season

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Almost like the workings of a fine clock, the team has been consistent.

This decade, the Lancaster County 4-H Livestock Judging Team, with different members, has won the statewide championship in 1991, 1995, and again this year.

Some would think: Four years apart. Time and again.

But they've done even better than that. Since Chet Hughes has been the county extension agent, teams have also gone to nationals in 1984, 1987, and 1989.

But time is well spent as the team makes final practices for the national competition at the North American International Livestock Expo in Louisville, Ky., Nov. 16.

In the meantime, when they can, the team is preparing for the competition. They have been practicing their judging on the three species — swine, sheep, and beef — noted Chet Hughes, livestock agent. Hughes assists Wendell Landis, team coach.

Members include John Hess, 18; Geoff Rohrer, 16; Jessica Schmidt, 17; and Kevin Pfautz, 16.

The typical age to begin competing on a 4-H team is 12, noted Hughes. "Some of the early birds start at 10 or 11 or so, but can't compete until they're 13."

For years, the Lancaster team has battled Lebanon County's team, a fierce rivalry, but this time, in the summer, Lancaster took state prize.

The team members met for more practice, noted Wendell Landis, himself a member of the statewide 1991 champion team from Lancaster. Wendell, a graduate of Lancaster Mennonite High School and 1999 Penn State animal science graduate, has seen this before.

Practice, and learning to focus, are key, he said. The team has to be able to "see as many different breeds within the species and provide reasons" during competition, Landis noted. There are 12 classes in the day-long competition later this month, beginning at 8 a.m. and lasting until about 4 p.m., including providing detailed, articulated oral reasons on four of them.

Team members must place animals and provide reasons to back up those placings.

Why compete? According to Landis, in 1991, when he competed as a sophomore in high school, there were 35 teams in the national contest in Louisville. Landis noted he sees people he knows and meets a lot of new friends.

"It's a good experience and it builds a lot of character," he said.

According to team member Jessica Schmidt, the experience allows her to practice her public speaking and get more confident at it.

Geoff Rohrer will present his experiences on the trip to Louisville to the school board. Geoff said he used to be "really shy," but the experience has given him poise and self-confidence.

Landis noted that for some, the experience has helped them build careers. Some take their knowledge of placing animals and providing reasons and used that experience to judge county fairs around the state.

Hughes noted the team will make several stops when it leaves for Louisville Nov. 4. The team will stop at Penn State to receive instructions from Keith Bryan, instructor in dairy and animal science. From there, it will head to western Pennsylvania, then to eastern Ohio, near Columbus, then travel to hog farms in western Ohio.

While in Lexington, Ky., the team will stop and judge cattle on several farms. There's even time for a stop at the Corvette museum in Bowling Green, Ky.

The team that last went to Kentucky in national competition from Lancaster placed sixth overall but high in individual sheep judging in 1995.

But the experience then, as now, is good for building friendships, noted Geoff Rohrer. "You get to see different places," he said.

The events give the team members an opportunity to attend social events and meet with people, Hughes noted.

Jessica Schmidt is the daughter of Laurie and Pete Schmidt, Drumore. She is a senior at Solanco High School. Jessica brought her Dorset March ewe lamb, Adelida, to practice Monday evening at the Farm and Home Center.

Jessica raises Dorsets and Montadales. She said her favorite are Dorsets because "they are calmer and gentler."

Jessica traded a pig with Bud Stillman, a neighbor, for her first Dorset, now 10 years old, named Madeline. She has 20 Dorset brood ewes and five Montadales.

When judging champion sheep, breed judges want to see them "tall, broody, feminine, and long," said Jessica.

Jessica also raises Angus, including two cows, Lassie and Fancy, and two steers.

Jessica said she needs to practice more on providing accurate and detailed reasons.

John Hess, son of Bob and Deb Hess, Mount Joy, raises Herefords. John is a senior at Elizabethtown High School. He also enjoys raising sheep. John said he needs more practice in judging and providing reasons on hogs. Often, he noted, it is hard to tell what differences exist between hogs in the show ring.

Geoff Rohrer is the son of Dudley and Beth Rohrer, Manheim. Not long ago, Geoff, who plans to graduate from Manheim Center in 2001, decided to give up on hog production and expand the sheep flock. He has about 120 ewes and 350 market lambs, mostly Dorset and Dorset-Polypay crossbreds.

Geoff noted he needs to practice more on beef judging. He said he has more experience on the smaller animals, because hogs and sheep are about the same size.

Team member Kevin Pfautz, son of Rick and Sue Pfautz, Lititz, couldn't attend the meeting Monday because of other commitments. He plans to graduate from Warwick High School in 2001.

What other kind of preparations are called for?

"We're going to have a typical, traditional light McDonald's breakfast before the contest," said Chet Hughes, livestock agent.

Ag Journalist To Speak At Agriculture-Industry Banquet

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Max Armstrong, one of America's best-known and most widely followed agriculture journalists, is the featured speaker for The Lancaster Chamber of Commerce & Industry's 23rd Annual Agriculture-Industry Banquet Tuesday, November 23, 5:30 p.m., at the Lancaster Host Resort.

Armstrong, who grew up on a farm in Southwestern Indiana, has conducted daily broadcasts with colleagues Orion Samuelson on Chicago's WGN AM Radio 720 for more than 20 years. The two also can be heard each day on roughly 500 radio stations through their Tribune Agri-Voice broadcasts, the Farming America radio show, and the National Farm Report programs.

John M. Blanchfield, from the American Bankers Association, will serve as the evening's emcee.

The George C. Delp Award, honoring someone who has given outstanding contributions to agriculture and agri-business, will be presented at the banquet. Families receiving the Century Farm Award also will be honored.

Tickets for the banquet are $40. To make a reservation or for information regarding sponsorship opportunities, please contact Brent Landis at 397-3531 or e-mail at blandis@lcci.com.

Conference Points Out Various Avenues To Heifer Health

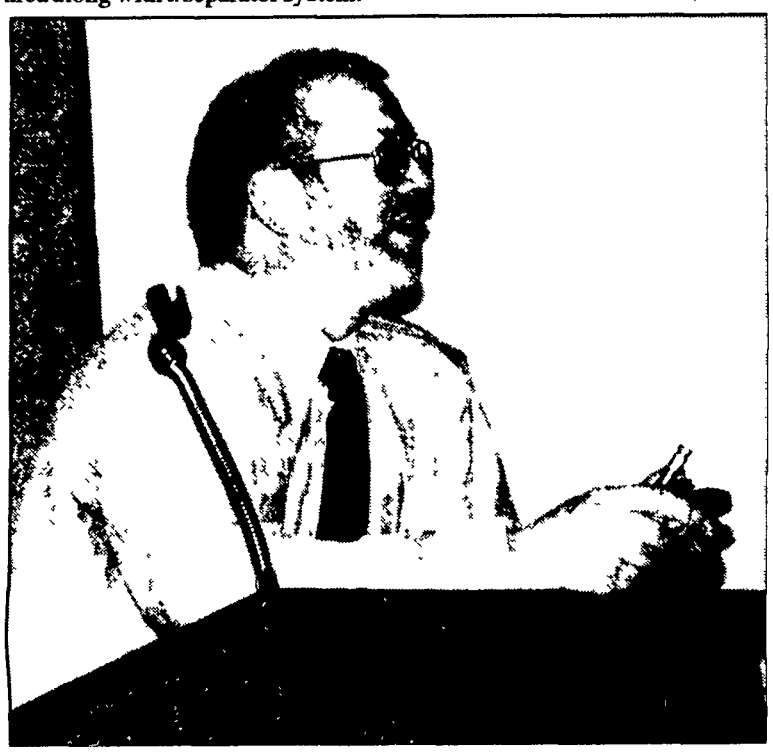
up with a plan to capture any leachate, Bechard said he is quite convinced it won't work. "But I haven't convinced the state of it yet," he said.

"This is a really big issue for us," he said. "Believe it or not, they complain more about the smell of the bunkers than they do the barns — a lot more." They plan to move the bunks.

Years back, the farm would spread the manure regularly, after moving it from a holding area. Now all of it is stored in Barn C in an underground pit. Recently they secured a grant from the state to put in a 5.5-million-gallon lagoon area along with a separator system.



Steve Bechard, B&R Dairy, Chazy, N.Y.

Regarding herd health, Bechard, raising heifers at the site since 1993, said in 1997 a freestall barn measuring 103 foot wide by 204 feet long was installed. Airflow for herd health has been improved considerably from an older barn built in the 1960s.

"We just fell in love with this type of facility," Bechard said. "The airflow compared to the old one is just absolutely night and day. The volume of fresh air in this barn is just astronomical."

Airflow from outside — rather than simply blowing around air with fans — is critical to proper ventilation, according to several who spoke Tuesday at the conference. Said Dan McFarland, Penn State ag engineer, an important health feature is good ventilation to control moisture, odors, gases, and pathogens. Air quality inside, he said, should match air quality outside.

Structures that are open to airflow in the hot summer and can close readily to keep calves warm in the winter, yet still maintain proper air flow, are crucial for improved profitability.

Resting area is also critical, according to Gooch of Cornell. A clean, dry, and comfortable resting area with adequate ventilation that provides calves with good access to feed and water round out the equation.

Body heat must be maintained at a constant, healthy level, even during cold winter. And proper bedding helps maintain a "fluffed" hair, according to Gooch, crucial to maintaining the insulation value of the outer body surface. If the layer, which must be kept dry and fluffed during cold conditions, becomes wet or matted with manure, its insulation value is decreased and the calf has a harder time staying warm and comfortable.

This stress on the calf could affect its daily gain and overall productivity.

For Bechard at B&R Dairy in Chazy, N.Y., five groups are maintained in the Barn A freestall facility. They mix separate rations for each group. "Cattle really like it when they get to move into this barn," he said.

Barn B, noted Bechard, measures 103 foot wide by 500 feet long. If they had a chance to reconstruct the barn, they would avoid connecting it to an old barn. Rather, they'd place it perpendicular to the older facility, because of problems with proper air flow at one end. "We've gotten a lot smarter when we designed this barn," said Bechard.

They also got rid of the plywood dividers and installed cement ones, because of heifer damage from chewing.

The C Barn, perpendicular to the A and B barns, measures 103 feet wide by 280 feet long. This contains the underground liquid manure system. All manure from the barns is moved here. The pit is pumped out about once a week.

They will soon be installing digital scales in this barn to weigh groups coming in and those going out, or from one barn to another. The scales will go in the area between the B and C barn. The C Barn, constructed last winter, is home to groups weighing 1,000 pounds or more per heifer.

The only complaint: because the farm had to go to a separator system, the old stalls, with sand, had to be replaced with concrete stalls. They replaced the stalls in the C barn with rubber mats, which will be yanked out, noted Bechard. The sand will be replaced by sawdust.

"The heifers absolutely hate them," he said. "They were raised on a sandy bed stall and moved in. We actually got heifers that refused to lie down for 3-4 days. Some had swollen feet."

Proponents of sand point out how much more comfortable the sand is and controls disease pathogens much better. But sand/manure management is another issue.

For those who want to improve profitability, investing in a more efficient facility has a direct effect on improving labor costs, according to Jason Karszes, farm management specialist with the Pro Dairy Program at Cornell.

"When designing replacement facilities, design for labor efficiency," Karszes told those attending the conference. Don't make the decision on the capitol investment cost only — consider the long-term, collective labor cost that could directly impact the bottom line.

In some cases, the bigger the facility, "the generally cheaper it is per animal," he said.

The goal, he noted, was to produce the highest quality animal at the lowest cost. "Don't sacrifice quality for lower cost," Karszes said.

When designing facilities, according to McFarland of Penn State, design those that can provide good care for animals but that also allow ease of management for the caretaker. And provide adequate spacing for the heifers.

"The less space you give the animal, the dirtier that group is going to become," McFarland said.

It's important to match the size of the stall to the animals using them. A drier, packed surface, is better for foot health.

McFarland also said that keeping SAW in mind — short for "Shade, Air, and Water" — can go a long way to reducing heat stress in summertime. Provide good feeding space for TMR (6 inches for calves 4-8 months old, 12 inches for 11.5-15.5 months, and 18.5 inches for calves 17-21 months old). Keep the feed area open, smooth, and free of debris.

A stable walking surface, concrete with a texture (such as parallel groove or diamond shapes) can be critical.

When determining what to charge for the calves raised, producers should include the cost of education and training, according to Peter Tozer, assistant professor of animal science, Penn State.

Tozer spoke about what it takes for producers to make a living.

He noted that, when you purchase a pickup truck, the cost of educating and training assembly line workers goes into the retail price of the truck. Why should it be any different for heifer growers?

What it takes to make a living depends on the goals and resources of the producer. Producers must sit down and calculate an accurate cost of producing heifers.

Producer Panel

Sam Leadley, Noblehurst Farms and editor of Calving Ease, a newsletter for calf and heifer growers in Pavilion, N.Y., was one of several producers on a panel on calf housing at the conference.

Leadley uses tether hutches, a "very, very forgiving housing system," he said, compared to fixed facilities. They are easier to keep clean and keep heifers healthy.

For Jeannie Wormuth, Agway TSPF Heifer Farm in Elba, N.Y., the strong emphasis is on strict biosecurity. They keep everything clean and do not allow traffic flow, even with visitors, onto the farm.

Wormuth said the Agway farm contracts with 23 dairies. The barns are designed for heifer comfort "all the way through," she said, for each age group. They have about 1,500 heifers on site.

Allen Waybright, Mason-Dixon Farms, Gettysburg, helps manage a 2,300-cow dairy herd with 1,800 heifers. In 1998 they raised 1,060 heifer calves and 500 bull calves (which may go as feeder calves at two months of age).

Mason-Dixon, said Waybright, intends to build more heifer facilities in the coming year. For the calves, they have four full-time employees.

Barb Young, Willow-O-Crest Farms, Clifton Springs, N.Y., spoke about her greenhouse calf facility built about five years ago. The facility measures 30 feet wide by 150 feet long, with a curtain sidewall built to be rolled from the ground up. Changes were made, including using a shade cloth.

In February of 1997, 80 mile per hour winds tour the plastic off the greenhouse. Calves were lost. "We almost lost an employee," said Young.

She said that if planning to expand a greenhouse, check to make sure the correct plastic coverings are in stock. She has invested a total of about $17,000 in the building.

If building today, it is important to ensure improved ventilation and an automated cleaning system to save on labor.

Dr. Max Van Buskirk spoke about work in Harrisburg to update and amend the Veterinary Practices Act.

Veterinary Bill Update

Dr. Max Van Buskirk, retired director of the Pennsylvania Bureau of Animal Health who is secretary-treasurer of the Pennsylvania Veterinary Medical Association, spoke about the work in Harrisburg to update and amend the Veterinary Practices Act to protect the user of veterinary services.

The bill is still being reviewed. In the version presented to state legislature in mid-September, H.B. 1418, modifications were needed to the act to include other modalities, including animal chiropractic and holistic medicine. The bill affects those who board or otherwise care for animals not owned by the caretaker.

(Those who provide health care for their own animals remain unaffected.)

In the current version of the bill, caretakers have to work with veterinarian supervision if applying medication or other modalities. More work is necessary, noted Van Buskirk, to define exactly what the "veterinary-client relationship" should consist of. "It's not part of the bill at this point, but might well should be," he said.

The wave of the future, Van Buskirk noted, is "who is doing what in the veterinary field."

Swine Odor Research Field Day

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — More than 50 farmers, ag agency staff and agriculture businesses were on hand at the David Groff farm in Kelly Township, Union County, on Thursday morning to learn the preliminary results from the swine odor project. On hand were the State's Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes and Deputy Secretary Chris Herr. The information from nine different farms across the state was presented by Dr. Ken Kephardt and graduate student Bob Mikesell.

Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes spoke to the group after a pork barbecue luncheon, stating that patience and diligent work by both farmers, their nearby neighbors, ag industry and cooperative extension will help solve issues like the odor reduction project. Hayes stated that this was an excellent example of all these groups working together to help find a solution for both neighbors and farmer. He emphasized that any new technology must not only be effective environmentally but also be economically sound for the farmer to operate. He concluded his comments about the project as an example of the willingness by the swine producers, the Department of Agriculture and Penn State University to address a highly controversial topic and arrive at technical solutions. The Secretary also mentioned additional swine odor research that is being conducted at the Monell Institute in Philadelphia. The project began this spring to determine: 1) the effectiveness of three odor reducing technologies from the manure

Pa. Junior Jersey Youth En Route To Kentucky

LIBERTY (Tioga Co.) — Junior Jersey members from across Pennsylvania are in Louisville, Ky. this weekend to participate in the North American International Livestock Exposition.

Junior Jersey Club members were selected at the State Junior Dairy Show in Harrisburg in September. This year 25 youth exhibitors were selected to show 23 animals at the national show. Nineteen of these juniors accepted the invitation to be part of the Pennsylvania delegation.

While in Louisville, participants will have the opportunity to show in the National Youth Jersey show and the National Youth Awards Banquet. They will also have the chance to be awed by the ceremony of the National Jersey Jug Futurity and witness top Jerseys sold at auction at the National Jersey sale.

According to Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Association (PJCA) Secretary David Norman, the Pennsylvania delegation is made possible through generous donations from businesses across Pennsylvania as well as contributions from PJCA.

"Because we sponsor this trip and solicit donations to help with the cost, many more individuals have the chance to attend a national show," he said. "This is an excellent experience for the youth and is something they remember for years to come. It's a thrill to see so many great cows at the top Jersey show in the country."

Junior members participating in this year's show are: Winter Calf. Tori Jo Fuller, Cumberland County and Ellen Norman, Tioga County.

Fall Calf: Kristin McCauley, Bucks County, Lynde Vanderstrappen, Mercer County, Crystal Rassau, Butler County and Christine Wagner, Wayne County.

Summer Yearling: Michelle Adam, Wyoming County, Chad Potteiger, Cumberland County.

Spring Yearling: Tori Jo Fuller, Cumberland County, Jennifer Kellerman, Centre County.

Junior 2-Year-Old: Stephanie Carson, Washington County.

Senior 2-Year-Old: Logan Horst, Franklin County, Katherine Skaggs, Washington County

Junior 3-Year-Old: Randi Marchezak, Washington County

Wendy Rose, Somerset County

Four-Year-Old Joshua Kellerman, Centre County.

33rd Annual Farm-City Feast

MONTROSE (Susquehanna Co.) — The 1999 Farm-City Feast Nov. 20 will be the 33rd year that the event is being conducted in Susquehanna County

Widely recognized as one of the largest Farm-City celebrations in the state, the Susquehanna County event typically draws several hundred visitors and residents each November to the Mountain View High School on the Saturday before Thanksgiving.

The Farm-City Feast is hosted by a group of local volunteers assisted by Penn State Cooperative Extension. Many local businesses, both agricultural and otherwise, contribute gifts, door prizes and financial support to help sponsor the program.

The doors open at 7:15 p.m. followed by a roast beef dinner prepared by Harford Willing Workers. Pastor John Sherman of Pilgrim Holiness Church in Glenwood will offer the invocation.

Everybody is invited and encouraged to attend. Tickets cost $8 per person and are available from the Susquehanna County Cooperative Extension office, at 31 Public Avenue, Montrose, or by calling (570) 278-1158. Promotional posters displayed at numerous county businesses also indicate if tickets are available in your immediate area from a committee member.

Question· Production levels of our herd have dropped over the last several years by 3000# RHA. We feel that our management and ability to provide top feed to our cows is at an all time high How do we determine what is wrong?

Many factors concerning total herd production can cause RHA averages to drop Some that come to mind are reproduction problems, high SCC, poor peak performance, and metabolic health problems, just to name a few. Thinking about all of the possibilities can make your head spin. To avoid the confusion surrounding problem solving, the best way to begin is to segment the herd into smaller groups and study production trends there. Looking at management groups such as dry, prefresh, or production groups can help. Another segment to look at is lactation number or age. This method can help answer the current question

When I looked at the herd's research over the last several years I noticed that the drop in first lactation was nearly as great as the overall change in herd production This alone does not indicate where to begin looking for production problems in the young cows The second factor that caused me to zero in on this group was the growing percentage of first lactation cows in the herd. Part of this was planned as the herd increased in numbers beginning three years ago Since then numbers have remained the same but the percentage of first lactation cows continues to climb to the current level of over 40%. What is causing this?

My focus was now on the two-year-old group. It was noted that age at first calving had dropped to 24 months from 27 months. This should have made more heifers available to sell but in fact, this herd needed to buy some replacements. I then proceeded to look at the current two-year-olds in the milking herd. The size difference between the young cows and their older counterparts was quite large. Heifers need to calve weighing about 1300# and should stand 55 inches tall to make it in modern dairy management. I did not measure but was sure that these young cows did not meet these criteria.

Next, I went to see the close up heifers. These heifers were all running with a single dry cow group and all had eartags that indicated their birth dates. Here I saw heifers that were healthy looking, shiny, and all the same size. The problem was that they were different in age. The youngest were recently bred and 16 months old. The oldest were 23 months old and ready to calve soon. Body condition scores were all the same but I was surprised by the uniformity in stature. Normally these heifers would be 5 inches different in height considering their difference in age. I was sure that they were not all the suggested 55 inches we need at freshening. On the contrary, I believe most of them to be about the same stature that they were at breeding. This was confirmed by walking among the breeding age heifers that are housed in a heifer barn. There appeared to be little difference in size from these animals to the oldest heifers running with the dry cows. How did this happen?

Sometimes, changes creep into our management practices without us being aware of them. This is what has happened to the heifers on this farm. Years back, when 70 cows were milked, heifer facilities were built to accommodate the 50 to 70 replacements raised at any given time.

Numbers grew in the milking herd to the point where heifers had to be moved out of the heifer facility to accommodate a rising population of young cattle. The only place to gain this room was with the dry cows. Without facilities to handle this group of heifers properly, they were treated just as if they were dry cows. After all, they were pregnant and not producing milk. Dry cow diets are typically low in protein and energy levels are such that the animals do not gain or lose weight. This is not what we need for heifers. During the last 7 to 9 months before calving, heifers need to gain 400 pounds and grow an additional 5 inches. Compounding the problem is the fact that we make cows out of them early and then expect them to compete with the mature cows once they are part of the milking string. Sometimes this can be compensated for during the last half of the first lactation and even into the next. It may also be why the first lactation group is producing less milk than they did several years ago. Often, because of the pressure to generate profits, this does not happen and we have problems to deal with as herd production decreases and we cannot understand why.

The need for evaluation of our total management practices grows as we proceed into the next century. Failure to measure the result of our management changes can lead to problems.

Growth, as with any change needs to be measured. This is a good example of how one goal can trigger other problems that keep us from reaching that goal. Milking more cows caused a setback in heifer development due to a lack of heifer facilities. Sometimes we need to establish ways to measure management changes before they lead to problems. Records are the key

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

storages on the swine operations, and 2) the intensity of odor at nearby residences both before and after the technologies were installed.

According to Union County extension agent Norman Conrad who helped with the project, several nearby neighbors who collected data during the project stated that they were grateful that the Department and University were willing to work with the farmer.

The three odor technologies which were evaluated included floating bio-covers on outdoor manure storage on the Wiand Farms in Lewis Township in Union County; and in Berks County; dust filtration using wind socks on the floor fans on three farms in Bradford, Fulton and Mifflin counties; and biofiltration at two grower units in Tioga County and at the Groff farm in Kelly Township, Union County.

The practices were installed this spring and more than 200 nearby residents were recruited to help record and collect daily odor data at their homes during the project period. Odor swatch samples were also taken before and after the biofiltration installation and sent to the human odor panels at North Carolina and Duke universities for their evaluation according to Kephardt.

Bob Mikesell shared the results of the odor surveys returned by the more than 200 local neighbors at the nine sites. Technical problems in keeping the large biofilters in place during this past summer's storms resulted in little or no reduction in odors. The preliminary data for all three practices had neighbors ranking odors at a level of 0.9 on a scale of 0=no odor and 5=very intense before the odor reduction systems were installed. The average odor scores were fairly low both before and after the installation. At most locations odor diminished as the distance from the farm to the residences increased.

Mikesell stated that the biofiltration data at the Groff farm showed the greatest reduction in odors based on the data collected by more than 60 nearby neighbors throughout the project.

The research project was sponsored by Penn State University, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Pork Producers' Council with support from Hostetter Management and Farmer Booy Ag Systems.

L.B.WHITE®

Infraconic Heat Efficiency

By maximizing the conversion of gas to radiant energy, the L B White Infraconic gives you more heat for your fuel dollar as well as a broader area of heat output and more consistent temperature at bird level With more consistent temperatures and a larger 'comfort zone', the infraconic helps your birds grow by keeping them warm, making it easier for them to find feed and water, and keeping the litter drier

Lightweight and easy to install, the Infraconic is also simple to clean and maintain And because the Infraconic hangs higher than other brooders, it's easier to work around during production or clean out

L.B. White Infraconic brooders are available in 17,100 and 34,200 Btuh outputs, as well as your choice of LP or natural gas.

Winter Is Soon Here, Are Your Heaters Ready?

Flexible and economical heat:

- Models to meet different needs, with heat outputs from 30,000 to 325,000 Btuh, plus variable outputs for greater heating efficiency.
- All models are available for use with propane or natural gas
- Compact profiles and indoor or outdoor mounting capability for easy installation and efficient use of space

Reliable and durable:

- Sentinel System III advanced diagnostic controls monitor all primary heater functions for dependable worry-free operation.
- Sentinel System III diagnostics pinpoint potential heater interruptions quickly and accurately to save time and money
- High quality components and solid case construction washdowns and years of dependable service in corrosive environments

ton. Ken is a Rensselaer County legislator, chairman of the Agricultural Farmland Protection board, and secretary of the Rensselaer Soil and Water Conservation District. Phil is the supervisor for the Town of Brunswick and is one of a seven-member agriculture advisory board to Governor George Pataki. Their farming career began in 1958 with 49 cows and 400 acres. After several expansions over the years, it now harbors 580 milking Holsteins and 500 youngstock, and contains 1,500 acres, growing mostly corn and hay. Together, the Herringtons have devised an environmentally sound and profitable way to deal with the manure output of a farm of this size. The farm is home to a cutting-edge manure separation system, that turns the solid material into highly active and sought-after compost and top soil, which the farm sells mostly in large quantities to landscapers.

John Feusner and his wife, Denise, own and operate their 150-acre dairy operation just outside of the village of Troy, Pennsylvania. The farm produces more than 1.1 million pounds of milk a year, and has been recognized by Dairylea as a quality milk producer. This past year, an addition their free-stall barn has not only contributed to the overall comfort of their cows, it has also enabled them to double the size of their herd. The Feusner's progressive approach to dairying includes taking advantage of Dairylea's buying programs, which enable them to save money on additional feed purchases and other products.

Oakwood Dairy, which plays host to more than 1,000 visitors from around the world every year, is a state-of-the-art operation located in Auburn, N.Y. This Dairy of Distinction is owned and operated by partners, Ted O'Hara, Bill Morgan and Paul Colgan. The farm consists of 2,800 acres, where mostly corn, alfalfa and wheat are grown. The recently expanded operation is home to a 1,200-head Holstein herd, producing 30 million pounds of milk a year. The farm, which has workforce of 22 employees, has been honored with the Outstanding Farm Employer Award by the New York State Department of Labor and the New York Farm Bureau. In addition, the dairy has earned numerous Dairylea Quality Milk Awards, Super Milk Awards, and has been honored over the years by Northeast DHIA. In a successful bid to establish and maintain a good relationship between the farm community and the consuming public, and to create a better awareness of the importance of farming to the general public, Oakwood Dairy has hosted a "Family Fun on the Farm Day" for the past five years.

Dairylea Cooperative is a Syracuse-based agricultural service organization, cooperatively owned by more than 2,800 farmers throughout the Northeast. Marketing approximately five billion pounds of milk annually, it participates, and is invested, in a milk-marketing network stretching from Maine to Ohio to Maryland

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

KEN BAILEY
Penn State University
Associate Professor Of Dairy Marketing And Policy

• Cheese Demand Stronger Than Expected

• U.S. economy grew 4.8 percent during July-September

• Demand for American cheese up 7.1 percent June-August

• Butter and cheese prices slightly weaker this week

The record-setting growth in the cheese price this past summer was greeted with much suspicion among economists who agreed that the lofty levels achieved were not merited by market conditions. I described it in an earlier column as "irrational exuberance," a description borrowed from Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan's description of our overheated economy. The milk supply wasn't threatened; it only slowed for a month or two before resuming. There was even speculation that underlying demand for cheese during this period was only average at best. No, it was agreed by many observers that the record cheese price of $1.97 per pound was only reached via irrational market psychology. It would be months before we would find out what really happened to cheese demand.

Well the results are in. USDA announced this week that commercial disappearance, a proxy for demand, during the months of June through August was well, pretty good! Butter consumption was up 8.3 percent, American cheese up to 7.1 percent, and other cheese up 5.8 percent over the same period a year ago. This is well above the 2.5 percent growth in the U.S. milk supply during these same months. -20

While market supply and demand conditions during the months of June through August didn't justify the record-breaking cheese prices, at least cheese demand could be described as fairly strong. This largely explains the huge drop in American cheese stocks reported last week. It is probable this strong demand for cheese had its roots in a very robust U.S. economy. -20

My print is one can speculate that if the economy continues to remain strong during the last three months of 1999, then demand for cheese will remain strong and prevent cheese prices from dropping below current levels.

Cheese prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange were relatively

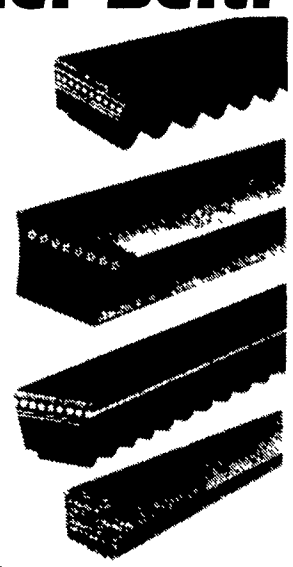
SUPER HC® AND SUPER HC® MOLDED NOTCH BELTS are designed for use where conventional V-Belt drives are impractical, where space, weight or sheave limitations are present and where increased horsepower capacity and higher speeds are required.



FEATURES:

• Gates "Curves"
Concave sides, Radius Relief and Arched Top combine to minimize wear and assure proper support and strength.

• Full Oil & Heat Resistance
Special material used throughout the belt provides resistance and also helps resist ozone, sunlight, weather and aging

• Tough Tensile Members for Extra Strength
Superior resistance to fatigue and shock loads. Special bonding material surrounding tensile members provides long service without separation.

• Molded Notches Reduce Bending Stress
Notches are precision engineered for uniform distribution of stresses. Also dissipate the heat of rapid flexing

• Bandless, Precision Machined Edge for Even Wedging Action
Precisely machined to exact dimensions for uniform fit and reduction of belt slippage

USDA described churning activity this week as increasing in most areas of the country and demand for print orders improving in preparation for the Thanksgiving Holiday.

Berks County Farms Open For Tour Nov.13-14

READING (Berks Co.) — The 26th annual Berks County Farm Tour will be held Saturday Nov. 13 and Sunday Nov. 14, from noon to 5 p.m.

The farm tours are free and education. The purpose of the tours, which are sponsored by the Berks County Farm Bureau, is to build a bridge of understanding between urban and farm neighbors.

Farms open for tour include the following:

•Clover Hill, from Rt. 422 or Rt. 183, follow Bernville to Robesonia Rd. to W. Meadow Rd. Turn right into the first driveway. Clover Hill is a winery and includes a walk through the vineyards, a presentation on wine and champagne production, and taste of several award-winning wines.

• Foxfield Farm, from the Sinking Spring Borough Hall, go south on Fritztown Rd. for 5 miles, turn left on Holtzman Rd., Go 1.2 miles to farm located on right. Sid and Susie Walmer board, breed, and train 30 horses and offer riding lessons on their picturesque farm. They also rehabilitate injured race horses and own an indoor arena.

• Pinnacle Ridge Winery, from Rt. 222, take Rt. 737 exit, go north to Krumsville. At the blinking red light, turn right on Old Rt. 222. Winery is .8 miles ahead on left. A detailed tour of the winery and vineyard will teach champagne making and complimentary tastings of red and white table wines.

• Windsor Farm, take Rt. 61 to Shoemakersville. At the light, take Rt. 662 south, turn left onto Windsor Castle Rd. Go 1 mile to farm Windsor is an Arabian breeding farm for 30 years. The farm boards about 40 breeds of horses and offers training and riding lessons in its indoor riding arena. They also offer a summer Equicamp program.

• Skyline Acres, take Old 22 to Sharltesville. At the grade school, turn south to continue past the school on School Rd. At the crossroad, turn right onto Skyline Drive. Dairy barn sets on the hill on the left. The new 500 free-stall dairy features a computerized double 12 milking parlor with an observation area. The operation is run by John and Donna Hix and Terry and Kim Hix families.

• Lalisa Holsteins, from Rt. 73 East or Rt. 422 East to Rt. 100 North in Bally, turn right onto South Seventh St. Travel .4 of a mile, farm lane is on the left. The farm has been a family farm since 1837. The 400-acre farm dairy farm with 160 milking cows is operated by the father and son partnership of LaVerne and Mark Moser. LaVerne's wife, Linda is a professional artist and shows a wide variety of prints and originals in her studio on the property.

Recycling Food Industry Wastes As Livestock Feed

livestock producers at a competitive disadvantage On the other hand, Pennsylvania has an active food processing industry that generates enormous quantities of plant and animal-based byproducts Many of these wastes can be safely and profitably fed to livestock but an organized source of nutritional management information is not available.

There are over 600 food processing plants in Pennsylvania. Many located in or near urban centers face increasing waste disposal pressures. As environmental legislation becomes more rigid, plant relocation or shutdown becomes a distinct possibility; this could adversely affect the economic well-being of the entire area. At the same time a farmer successfully feeding byproducts can markedly extend the animal production potential of his farm without expanding his land base. When successfully formulated, these strategies benefit the farmer, agribusiness companies and their employees, and the environment.

Are some of the food processing wastes that we consider to be odd additions to our animal rations likely to be well accepted in the future? In many cases what is now recognized as a standard feed ingredient was initially considered to be a low-value byproduct of human food manufacture. Years ago soybean meal was thought to be little more than a nuisance byproduct of soybean oil production. When it's high nutritive value for animals was discovered, and appropriate handling, storage, and feeding methods were defined, it became the high value feed ingredient that it is today. Similar examples include brewer's grain as a byproduct of the beverage industry, corn gluten meal from starch and sweetener production, meat and bone meals from the packing industry, whey from cheese manufacture, and many more.

How many additional examples will we add to the above list in the future? Economic and environmental factors will play a key role but so too will our level of imagination and resolve in developing utilization systems acceptable to the farmer, food manufacturer, and the environment!

It seems only logical that we should continue to encourage the link between Pennsylvania's dairy and livestock farmers and it's food processing industries

- The food industries in Pennsylvania are dynamic and diverse, producing a variety of byproducts.
- Many byproducts contain considerable nutritive value for animals with some comparing quite favorably to conventional feedstuffs.
- Recycling byproducts as animal feeds can aid the food manufacturer, the farmer, and the environment.

With such a logical link between Pennsylvania food manufacturers and livestock farmers, why did a recent survey find that less than 30% of the byproducts are currently recycled as animal feed? As always, economics play a major role. The degree of producer interest in byproduct feeds is directly related to the cost of conventional feeds, especially corn and soybean meal. When conventional feeds are in short supply (typical of a drought year!) and/or high in price, farmers are very interested in alternative sources of nutrients. When conventional feeds are cheap, little interest is expressed. This implies that a farmer must remain flexible in his feeding program, an approach that is avoided by many farmers

If you have interest in feeding a potential byproduct, and little is known of it's value, make sure you have solid answers to the following questions:

1. Are there any toxic substances present?
2. Is the waste product available in sufficient quantities to merit its use?
3. Is the waste material acceptable to livestock or can it be made acceptable through processing?
4. Is there potential nutritive value for a given class of livestock?
5. What is the moisture content?
6. Can the material be stored in some way?
7. What are the handling characteristic and problems?
8. Will the byproduct be competitive economically with conventional feeds?

At the very least, timely use of a byproduct feed could help keep your operation going until the rains return!

Proper Planning for Next Year's Farming Operation

As the harvest season comes to an end, you should begin to plan for next year's farming operation and future direction. An excellent way to begin this process is to schedule an official farm-business planning meeting with all owners and managers. Whether this meeting takes place at your kitchen table or a diner, it should be taken as serious as any corporate planning meeting would, because after all, farming truly is a business

An important way to start your meeting is to evaluate the past year's financial statements or tax returns

Look at where you are earning your greatest income and where you're losing the most money. How can you increase and strengthen your profitability, while controlling any losses you're incurring? How can you better manage the risk your farm incurs each year? If you need any help with this, you should contact your accountant, financial advisor or banker The profitability of your farm is the key to your farm's health and future growth.

The second aspect to look at is the efficiency of the day-to-day operations This section of the planning meeting is an excellent time to involve every employee that plays an active role on the farm, from helping to milk the cows to assisting with fieldwork.

Often, employees have the best ideas on how to improve operations Encouraging your employees to play a role in this planning meeting gives them a sense of teamwork and importance on your farm

Evaluating your marketing plan, should be the next progressive step in your meeting

Successful managers adapt to the changing needs of their markets It is often a good idea to seek advice about your farm from an outside source, to stimulate new ideas A few questions to ask yourself are· "What new market demands are there in agriculture, commodities groups, specialty markets, and contracts? What trends are consumers following in food consumption? How can you take advantage of these new markets on your farm and earn a profit?" After you evaluate the various market opportunities, determine what will fit into your farm operation the best. Write up a working marketing plan, which will serve as a sense of direction for the upcoming year

Determining how to implement change and assign management on your farm is a key next step

Good management looks at production, finance, personnel, and the specific market collectively while new changes occur You must clearly define each manager's role on the farm to avoid any problems This may result in hiring a non-family employee to manage a certain aspect of your farm better Looking at your farm as a business rather than a lifestyle is a critical item to remember

Monitoring and analyzing performance are two final steps that every business has to do to ensure success

One idea is a monthly meeting for all employees This will allow you to keep a closer handle on the general operations of the farm and help determine problems as they occur An open line of communication with all employees and managers is instrumental when monitoring and analyzing performance

When each of these key steps are evaluated during your business-planning meeting, your farm will have a greater chance to grow financially stronger in the 21st Century If you feel your farm needs some additional help with the planning process, you should contact your local Penn State Extension office or local college In the Lancaster area, The Lancaster Chamber offers a Farm-Business School

For additional information on the Farm-Business School or to make comments or suggestions on this column, please call Brent Landis, Chamber agriculture services coordinator, at (717) 397-3531 or e-mail at blandis@lcci com

Farm Management

WHAT IS RISK?

John Berry
Penn State
Lehigh County
Extension

Risk is uncertainty that affects an individual's welfare, and is often associated with adversity and loss. Risk is uncertainty that "matters," and may involve the probability of losing money, possible harm to human health, repercussions that affect resources (irrigation, credit), and other types of events that affect a person's welfare.

Uncertainty (a situation in which a person does not know for sure what will happen) is necessary for risk to occur, but uncertainty need not lead to a risky situation.

For an individual farmer, risk management involves finding the preferred combination of activities with uncertain outcomes and varying levels of expected return. One might say that risk management involves choosing among alternatives for reducing the effects of risk on a farm, and in so doing, affecting the farm's welfare position.

Some risk management strategies (such as diversification) reduce risk within the farm's operation, others (such as production contracting) transfer risk outside the farm, and still others (such as maintaining liquid assets) build the farm's capacity to bear risk. Risk management typically requires the evaluation of tradeoffs between changes in risk, expected returns, entrepreneurial freedom, and other variables. The following examples illustrate risk management in farming and the types of tradeoffs faced by farmers:

• Enterprisek diversification. Consider Farmer Smith, who is debating the most appropriate enterprise mix on his operation. In particular, Smith is contemplating switching 200 acres from corn to soybeans within his existing operation of corn, hay, and dairy. By adding this new crop, Smith is less at risk that the farm will generate low revenue because, in his location, income from soybeans is less variable than income from corn, and because individual commodity returns do not move exactly in. Smith must consider this risk reduction against the expected net returns associated with the new enterprise, weighing any potential decline in net returns against the lower income variability that he believes will be provided by such an additional crop.

• crop insurance. Consider Farmer Jones, who farms where the potential for drought is a constant worry and yield variability is high. Jones can purchase insurance to cover a large portion of the potential loss or can self-insure and absorb any losses caused by low yields. In investigating the purchase of crop insurance, she finds that the annual premium is quite high due to the significant yield variability in her area. As a result, Farmer Jones must consider the risk-return tradeoffs in deciding whether or not to purchase insurance and, if she decides to buy insurance, the level of coverage that best suits her risk management needs.

• Production contracting. Consider Farmer Johnson, who is considering whether to enter into a production contract with a large broiler integrator. The integrator retains control over the chicks as they are raised by the producer, and prescribes specific feeds, other inputs, and special management practices throughout the production cycle. In return for handing over management decisions, the producer's income risk is greatly reduced, market access is guaranteed, and access to capital is ensured. Johnson must weigh these potential benefits against his reduced entrepreneurial freedom and the risk of contract termination on short notice.

Balancing risk and return. As can be seen through these illustrations, managing risk in agriculture does not necessarily involve avoiding risk, but instead, involves finding the best available combination of risk and return given a person's capacity to withstand a wide range of outcomes. Effective risk management involves anticipating outcomes and planning a strategy in advance given the likelihood and consequences of events, not just reacting to those events after they occur.

The four main aspects of risk management involve (1) identifying potentially risky events, (2) anticipating the likelihood of possible outcomes and their consequences, (3) taking actions to obtain a preferred combination of risk and expected return, and (4) restoring (if necessary) the firm's capacity to implement future risk planning strategies when distress conditions have passed.

One-size-fits-all? Because farmers vary in their attitudes toward risk and their ability to address risky situations, risk management cannot be viewed within a "one size fits all" approach. It is not wise to say that "All corn farmers should hedge 50 percent of their crop in futures," or that "No farmer should plan to obtain more than two-thirds of their income from a single commodity." Different farmers confront different situations and structural characteristics, and their preferences toward risk and their risk-return tradeoffs have a major effect on decision making in each given situation. A large, industrialized operation, for example, may hire marketing expertise to directly use hedging and options, while a small family farm may prefer to forward con-tract with other parties better able to hedge directly.

Understanding risk in farming is important for two reasons. First, most producers are averse to risk when faced with risky outcomes. Someone who is risk averse is willing to accept a lower average return for lower uncertainty, with the tradeoff depending on the person's level of risk aversion.

Jump-Start With Honey

Healthful breakfast ideas for every day of the week

or today's busy families, weekday mornings can be pretty hectic—packing lunches, getting the kids off to school and getting ready for work In the rush of morning routines, we sometimes forget the most important meal of the day—breakfast When you eat in the morning, you get an instant boost and extra benefits Research shows eating breakfast helps kids and adults concentrate better and feel energized throughout the morning

Breakfast doesn't have to be time-consuming or complicated The key is to choose simple, nutrient-dense foods. A dairy protein, fruit juice and a high-energy carbohydrate, such as bread or cereal, can provide a significant part of your daily nutritional requirements A cup of lowfat yogurt provides protein as well as calcium for strong bones, and a glass of calcium-fortified orange juice provides calcium as well as vitamin C, folate and potassium Add a slice of whole wheat toast spread with honey for an energy boost and added nutrition Honey is a rich source of simple carbohydrates and, in addition, contains small amounts of a wide array of vitamins, minerals, trace minerals and amino acids, as well as antioxidants

When the weekend arrives and the pace slows, take some time to prepare a special breakfast or brunch for the whole family The nutrition basics are the same—fruit or fruit juice, protein and carbohydrate The same nutritious foods become the basis of a weekend breakfast delight, Brunch Crepes with Suzette Sauce—tender crepes filled with yogurt and fresh fruit, topped with a honey-orange sauce

Whether it's a fast Friday breakfast or a leisurely Sunday brunch, eating healthful and tasty foods in the morning is the best way to jump-start your day

Makes 5 servings

Pancakes

1 cup lowfat yogurt
1 large egg
1 cup pancake mix
No-stick cooking spray

Sauce

1 cup orange juice
1 medium apple, peeled and chopped
1 medium pear, peeled and chopped
1/3 cup honey
1 teaspoon freshly grated orange peel
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1/4 cup water

To make sauce In medium saucepan, combine orange juice apple, pear honey and orange peel Bring mixture to a boil over medium-high heat, stirring occasionally Reduce heat; simmer 8 to 10 minutes or until fruit is tender In small bowl, combine cornstarch and water; stir until cornstarch is dissolved Stir into hot mixture; cook and stir 1 to 2 minutes until mixture is thickened Set aside

To make pancakes In a medium bowl, combine yogurt and egg, mix until well blended Add pancake mix, stir just to combine Spray large nonstick skillet or griddle with no-stick cooking spray Heat over medium-high heat until hot For each pancake, spoon 2 tablespoons of batter into hot skillet Cook 4 minutes or until pancakes are set and golden, turning once Serve with Honey Fruit Sauce

Makes 8 muffins

1/4 cup butter, softened
1/2 cup honey
1 egg
1/4 cup frozen concentrated orange juice, undiluted
1/2 teaspoon freshly grated orange peel
1 1/4cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup chopped toasted almonds

Using electric mixer, beat butter and honey until light, add egg, orange juice concentrate and orange peel, mixing well In small bowl, combine flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt, gradually add to margarine mixture, mixing until just blended Stir in almonds Spoon into greased or paper-lined 2 1/2-inch muffin cups Bake at 350°F for 25 to 30 minutes or until wooden pick inserted into center comes out clean Remove muffins from pan to wire rack Serve warm or at room temperature.

Barbara Nissley Heads Lancaster County Farm Women

Barbara Nissley will be installed today as the president of the Lancaster County Society of Farm Women. She grew up attending meetings with her mother and grandmother, and later helped organize Society 23.

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

CENTERVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Today Barbara Nissley will be inducted as president of the Lancaster County Society of Farm Women. Its 587 members who meet in 25 societies spread throughout the county are holding an annual convention at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster.

Barbara's a new president but certainly no novice in leadership. In fact, the jolly, happy-go-lucky president has filled numerous leadership roles.

She was the first woman in the county to own a tractor dealership and to introduce no-till farming. But she's most proud that she successfully raised four children as a single parent — before that phase was coined.

Widowed with four young children ranging in ages from 9 to 16 years in 1965, Barbara said she did not have much time to brood her husband's death. Instead she assumed leadership of the Allis Chalmers Company that she and her husband had established on their farm.

Fortunately, Barbara was accustomed to the dual roles of mother and businesswoman. In addition to bookkeeping, Barbara was so adept at finding parts for customers that if anyone questioned her ability, her husband answered, "If she got it, it's right."

Barbara ran the business for 13 years after her husband died.

She said that she remembers when the tractor company came out with the no-till corn planting system.

"No one was buying it, so I offered to do sample plantings for farmers. It took off like wildfire."

That boosted businesss considerably. Barbara took care of inside sales, but eventually the company needed a salesperson on the road. Neither son enjoyed selling, preferring the mechanical end of the business. So Barbara closed the business in 1978 but stayed living on the farm unti 1983.

Although Barbara did not grow up on a farm, her grandmother and mother were both members of the Society of Farm Women 14. Barbara has fond memories of the meetings held in her grandmother's home. In 1952, Barbara helped organize Society 23 of which she is still a member. But before she became a member, much had happened in her life.

After Barbara was graduated from Strasburg High School in 1944, she entered nurses' training at Lancaster General Hospital. She received her registered nurse's degree but never worked as a nurse.

Instead she married Andrew

Lancaster County Dairy Princess Elisa Ranck has many talents, especially musical. The 17-year-old performs on the piano and harp for weddings and other special programs. At school she participates in school musicals, belongs to the Chamber Singers, and concert choir.

Despite her busy schedule as president of the senior class at Pequea Valley, 4-H member, and church youth group, Elisa milks daily on the family's 122-acre farm called Verdant View.

Elisa's parents, Donald and Virginia Ranck, also operate a bed and breakfast on their Paradise farm. In the fall of the year, the Rancks often serve this recipe to guests. Elisa thinks you will enjoy it as much as she does.

HONEY BAKED APPLES

4 large apples
½ cup water
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
Brown sugar
⅓ cup chopped walnuts
½ cup honey
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ banana, mashed

Slice apples and place in individual serving bowl. In a small saucepan, combine honey, butter, cinnamon, and cloves. Bring to a boil. Add mashed banana and chopped nuts. Pour hot sauce over apples. Microwave on HIGH for 3 to 3½ minutes. Makes 6-8 servings.

CHEESECAKE PIE

Crust:
¾ cup graham cracker crumbs
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup melted shortening

Combine crumbs, sugar, and shortening. Press into bottom and sides of 9-inch pie pan. Chill in refrigerator for one hour.

Filling:
8-ounces cream cheese
1 cup small curd creamed cottage cheese
½ cup honey
2 eggs
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla
Dash nutmeg

Combine cheeses in mixer or blender, beating until smooth. Add all other ingredients and mix well. Pour into crumb-lined pan, and bake in 350-degree oven for 30-35 minutes or until silver knife inserted in center comes out clean. Add sour cream topping.

Topping:
1 tablespoon sugar
1 cup sour cream
½ teaspoon vanilla

Combine sugar, sour cream, and vanilla. Spread over pie. Sprinkle ¼ -cup graham cracker crumbs over top. Heat in 475-degree oven for 5 minutes. Chill pie several hours before serving.

HONEY WHEAT BREAD

1 cup lukewarm water
2 tablespoons yeast
2 cups hot water
⅓ cup vegetable oil
⅓ cup honey
2 tablespoons salt
3 cups whole wheat flour
6 cups white bread flour

Add yeast to lukewarm water and let set until foamy. Meanwhile in large bowl, place hot water, oil, honey, salt, and whole wheat flour. Beat until smooth; add yeast mixture and 4 cups white bread flour. Beat well. Turn onto a floured board or tabletop and add remaining flour a half cup at a time. Knead until smooth and elastic. Grease the inside of mixing bowl and return dough to bowl. Let rise 1½ hours; knead well. Let rise another hour, then divide into four loaves and place in well-greased loaf pans. Let rise until a little higher than tops of pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

This is our family's favorite bread.

Best Way To Take Vitamin, Mineral Supplements

Many of us in the United States have never even heard of flaxseed, but in Canada and Europe, consumers have long been turning to flaxseed, not only for its pleasant nutty flavor but also for its many health benefits

Its popularity in the United States is starting to skyrocket. this is due to the realization that it can provide us with many essential nutrients. These nutrients include protein, essential fatty acids, vitamins and minerals, and both soluble and insoluble fiber, all of which are linked to reducing the risk of various diseases.

The oil in flaxseed has been the subject of a great deal of research. The fat in this grain contains a mixture of the three fats required in your diet. This "hearty-healthy" mixture includes low amounts of saturated fat, moderate amounts of monounsaturated fats ad high amounts of polyunsaturated fats.

Flaxseed also contains essential fatty acids, linolenic and linoleic, needed for growth, development, and repair of the body tissue. (Essential fatty acids are those we need to receive from the food we eat.) Linolenic is part of the group of fatty acids called omega-3s, which have been shown to modify several of the risk factors for coronary heart disease, including reducing triglycerides (fat in our bloodstream) and blood pressure.

The fiber in flaxseed provides about two-thirds water insoluble and one-third water soluble. While insoluble fiber helps to relieve constipation, soluble fiber has positive effects on maintaining appropriate blood sugar and lowering blood cholesterol levels.

The protein portion of flaxseed is similar to that of the protein in soybean flour and is particularly rich in the mineral potassium Other minerals it contains include magnesium, iron, copper, and zinc

To increase your intake of flaxseed, add it to homemade baked goods, sprinkle it on yogurt, cereal, and salads or purchase breads and muffins containing it The research is building on the benefits of flaxseed, but the daily amount of flaxseed needed to see these benefits has not been determined.

Flaxseed can be purchased either whole or milled. Whole seeds can be stored at room temperature up to one year. However, if you buy your seed already milled, place it in an airtight, opaque container in the refrigerator for no more than 30 days.

For more information, you can find useful tips about flaxseed, including nutrition information and recipes, at the Flax Council Web site at <www.flaxcouncil.ca>.

Nissley. "He was a pilot and we courted in an airplane," Barbara said.

Andrew was also a farmer. "He wanted a full-time wife and not a wife who worked away from home," Barbara said of the concept that was typical of that era.

With no prior farming experience, Barbara soon was helping with tomato raising on their Washington Boro farm, and then with the farm machinery business on their farm. But eight years after beginning the machinery business, Andrew died unexpectantly of a heart attack.

Barbara's upbeat attitude has helped her survive being widowed with four young children, running a tractor machinery business, and enduring severe arthritic pain. She keeps her crochet hook nearby to finish these projects to sell at a craft fair.

Barbara missed him terribly. "I had good children, and I give the Lord credit for that," she said.

While she continued the farm equipment business, her oldest daughter did the cooking, the other daughter the cleaning, and the two boys had a knack for fixing equipment.

"I got a dryer because it was too hard to run between the business and the house to hang up the wash," Barbara said.

After Barbara sold the business, she worked at the hospital for 10 years until she needed to take disability because of severe arthritis in her knees and ankles. Barbara has had two knee replacements.

"I suspect planting on those tomatoes on my knees had something to do with it," Barbara said of the arthritis.

But her positive attitude helps her adjust to the unpleasantries of life. Barbara takes no credit for the positive attitude that dominates her life and actions. "I trust a lot in the Lord. He's very precious to me," Barbara said.

She teaches Sunday School at Central Manor Church of God, where she has also served for 30 years on the missionary committee. She also bakes bread for the church to hand out a loaf with literature to visitors.

Barbara is a member of the Red Rose Christian Women's Club and enjoys gardening, cooking, baking, and crocheting. She lives in part of a farmhouse along Columbia Avenue and has the freedom of visiting her daughter in Alabama and the homes of her nine grandchildren.

"I write to everyone. I had five grandchildren in college at one time," she said.

Barbara also spends many hours crocheting hand towels and dishcloths for selling at craft shows.

Barbara insists that she was a shy country girl growing up, but in nurses' training she was dubbed the "clown of the class." Wherever she goes today, Barbara's jolly laugh is contagious.

"I'm not much for worrying. I cross bridges when I get there," Barbara said.

"I guess that's the way I'll be as president," she said.

Barbara would like to think of a way to encourage more people to join Farm Women, but so far hasn't thought of a novel idea.

"Too many women don't have time to become a member because they work full time and need to run their children to so many activities. But I'd like to think of something, because Farm Women is a wonderful organization," she said.

Dana Groff Is Poultry Ambassador

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Ever since she was a toddler, Dana Groff has been hanging out in the chicken house.

A picture of Dana dressed in a white sanitary suit and hairnet, required attire for poultry house visitors to comply with biosecurity precautions, is a treasured family photograph.

Seventeen-year-old Dana can still be found in the chicken house after school. She's busily packing eggs on the family farm. Recently Dana was assigned a new duty. She is the Lancaster County Poultry Ambassador.

Formerly this position was known as poultry queen, but John Mattilio, spokesperson for the Lancaster County Poultry Association, said that the organization wanted to get away from the "queen" image and established it as an educational responsibility.

Dana is well prepared for the educational aspect. She knows first-hand the responsibilities not only of egg production but also ag-related farm issues.

Her parents, Charles (better known as Chuck) and Carol, and brothers, Matthew, 13, and Kevin, 11, work together not only with poultry but also with dairying and field work on the family's Groffdale Farm, Quarryville.

The family is in the process of buying the three adjoining farms that Chuck had been farming in partnership with his dad. His parents, Millie and Bob Groff purchased the original farm about 42 years ago and added two more farms to the acreage over the years. The three farms encompass about 200 acres and additional acreage is rented. The Groffs do their own harvesting and use the grain for their farming operation.

"We must be willing to make changes," Chuck said of the operation, which recently has undergone some major changes. "To be successful, the family farm has got to be big or specialize."

For this reason, the Groffs converted their 60,000 layer house to a 23,600-bird breeder house. The Groffs were always independent producers until a year ago. Now they contract with Hyline to raise hatching eggs as part of the specializing process.

This change is more time consuming and less automated.

"They claim packing by hand works better than any machine," Chuck said of packing embryo eggs.

Packing eggs in the afternoon is a family affair on the Groff farm. Because the eggs are fertile, hand packing works better than machine packing to guarantee that eggs are handled appropriately for hatching. Here Dana, her dad, and brother Matt discuss their day while working.

Lancaster County Poultry Ambassador Dana Groff knows first-hand the responsibilities not only of poultry but also other ag-related farm issues.

"We must be very particular with the eggs. There is no room for error," Dana said of the requirement that all eggs be packed with the pointed-ends down. This creates an air pocket for the chick to hatch; otherwise the chicks do not hatch.

Although the Groffs have one-third the number of chickens they had for their layer operation, the time required to pack eggs is longer, 3½ -4 hours daily.

The chickens are not housed in pens but run freely on the floor. The newly-installed system is from Holland and is considered to be quite successful for this type of operation. Pens that look similar to dog houses are installed in columns. Chickens are trained to enter the pens to lay eggs. Training is attained with the use of lights.

Chuck explained that the lights are turned on inside the pens about two hours before being the poultry house is fully lighted. This attracts the chickens to enter the pens, which are soft and comfortable for nesting. When the chicken lays an egg, it rolls onto a belt beneath the pen and is carried into the egg room.

Chuck and Carol pack the eggs in the morning. The whole family works together during the afternoon packing.

A new flock of chickens were put in during September. The flock is just now reaching top production. Eggs are determined to be ready for incubation when a case of eggs weighs 40 pounds. Prior to the required incubation weight, the eggs gathered are sold for breakers.

The Groffs count the timing of top production as fortunate sychronization. From September through October, Dana plays field hockey for Solanco High School. The hockey season ends just as Dana is required to spend more time packing eggs.

Until two months ago the Groffs were milking cows. But in curtailing the operation to become more specialized, they have merged their herd with another farmer who now does the milking. The heifers are sent back to the Groffs for raising.

"We have been able to continue our line of registered Holsteins this way," said Chuck. The family plans to set up a milking operation when the heifers freshen since Matthew and Kevin will then be older and able to assume more responsibility with the cows.

"I like genetics and cows," Chuck said of his preferences in farming.

Dana said, "Cows seem more personable than chickens from the aspect that we worked daily with the cows. With chickens, we are working in room where the product comes rather than with the bird itself."

Chuck said that he enjoys many aspects about farming, and that has made it more difficult for him to adapt to specialization.

"I also like to play mechanic, electrician, welder. . . . My dad had the ability to do many things and I hope to pass it on to my children," Chuck said.

He is proud that Dana is capable with tractor driving, milking cows, and in the poultry operation.

In addition to field hockey, for which she played forward and was a tri-captain, Dana is part of the school's color guard, is treasurer of the Student Senate, a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, and a member of the National Honor Society. Dana explained that each class at Solanco has its own government with five representatives to oversee the whole student body. Dana is treasurer of the School Senate (the whole student body, not just the senior class).

"We all work together to plan home coming, pep rally, teacher appreciation day, and other events," she said. "Recently we held a 'Sock It to Drugs,' where we all wore corny socks," Dana said. She is part of a team that went one week to the district's elementary schools to teach children the benefits of not using drugs.

She said that last year, the school had a problem with so many students fighting. With the help of required anger management classes, peer mediation, and fines, the fighting has decreased.

In addition to school, sports, and church youth group activities, Dana also works part time at Maplehofe Dairy, where she dips ice cream for customers.

Dana is president of the youth group at Mechanics Grove Church of the Brethren. This summer she went on a mission trip to Puerto Rico.

"It was awesome," she reported. She and one other youth group member were placed with a family in a remote area. They had no running water and needed to bath in a local stream. The mission team dug footers for a building. It rained every day, and the team needed to daily reshovel much of the same dirt as the day before.

She was able to communicate with the family because most of the students in Puerto Rico are required to study English for 12 years.

"But many of them are hesitant to use English for fear they won't pronouce the words properly," Dana said. She could identify with that embarrassment because she herself had studied three years of Spanish in school but found pronouciation a bit difficult. However, everyone was friendly, and found being forced to communicate enabled them to have conversations about many topics.

The exposure to the Puerto Rican culture was a much more enjoyable experience for her than a trip to Russia had been previously.

The Groff family had visited Russia because Chuck is a member of Pennsylvania Producers Import Export (PPIE), a group of farmers marketing food overseas.

As treasurer of PPIE, Chuck wanted to see firsthand how the food was being handled.

The food was being marketed successfully until the U.S. government offered free aid, which resulted in food products being given away instead of being paid. PPIE is now marketing computer components and finding success in that area. However, Chuck believes that the potential to market food in Russia will someday be possible again.

"A lot of education in handling and food preparation is needed," Chuch said. "Russia lacks needed refrigeration, which causes a lot of problems."

While in Russia, the Groffs stayed with a family who could speak no English. An interpreter came by each morning, which helped considerably.

The Groffs traveled around St. Petersburg by themselves.

"It was so difficult because every street and building looks the same. We drove all day and did not get to the edge of the city."

The Groffs were determined to blend in with the people. For this reason, they did not wear blue jeans, but dress clothing.

"We blended in well," Dana said.

Chuck said, "We were able to see people purchasing our product — cream cheese."

According to Chuck, Russia was the place where cream cheese originated. But under Stalin's regime, the cream cheese factory, Raskas, relocated to the U.S.

The Groffs discovered that Russia desserts are extremely rich, to the point that it caused the family upset stomachs during their stay in Russia. The family was not fond of the borsch and many of the cabbage-related recipes served. Because the Groffs observed that egg salad was kept unrefrigerated, they hated to eat it, although they did because they wanted to be appreciative guests.

"We ate a lot of bread," Dana recalled of the one food they believed passed food safety standards.

"Russia was like stepping back in time," Dana said. Most of the time, there was no warm water and baths needed to be taken with cold water.

"We came home with incredible appreciation for the United States," Dana said.

The Groff family makes family togetherness a priority.

"We spend a lot of time just talking in the evening," said Chuck. He sees his children as priority and declines many opportunities to join committees, which would detract from family time.

The children have a quarterhorse, enjoy playing baseball and other games together. They also enjoy driving around the farm in a 1964 Convair convertible that Chuck has kept in running condition.

Dana said that she enjoys anything that involves water. On family vacations she prefers the beach, but accomodates fishing and boating in Canada and Vermont, which is preferred by her brothers.

From the beginning of their marriage, Carol has always worked side by side with Chuck in milking cows, poultry production, field work, and every aspect of the farming operation. Carol also enjoys gardening, landscaping, preserving food, and fixing up their home.

Dana is considering studying elementary education at either Juniata College or the University of Delaware.

"My main choice is Juniata. The rural setting reminds me more of home. I prefer a small, friendly college," Dana said of her decision.

Dana receives a $1,000 scholarship from the Poultry Association for her work in presenting Ag in the Classroom programs to county elementary schools.

Family time is a priority in the Groff home. Here Dana, Matthew, 13, and Kevin, 11, prepare for a game of softball.

QUESTION — Brenda Houser, Middletown, would like a recipe to make cookies that taste like the ones served at Shady Maple Smorgasboard. The varieties that she likes are Chocolate Chip Truffle, which has a chocolate batter with chocolate chips in it and a soft chocolate center, and Peanut Butter Truffle, which has a peanut butter batter with chopped nuts and a soft peanut butter filling.

ANSWER — R. Nolt, Leola, wanted to know how to make bread croutons. Thanks to Debra Allgyer, Womelsdorf, for sending her recipe.

Croutons

Place one layer of bread cubes using day-old bread, rolls, etc. on a cookie sheet. Sprinkle with garlic salt or seasoned salt, and bake one hour at 275 degrees. For a crunchier crouton, drizzle with melted butter before sprinkling with seasonings.

ANSWER — D. Reinert, Alburtis, wanted a recipe for baked French toast like that served at Shady Maple Smogasbord. Thanks to Nancy Frey, Annville, for sending a recipe.

Nutty French Toast

12 slices French bread, 1-inch thick
8 eggs
2 cups milk
2 teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¾ cup butter, softened
1⅓ cups brown sugar
3 tablespoons dark corn syrup
1 cup chopped walnuts

Place bread in 9x13-inch baking dish. Beat eggs, milk, vanilla, cinnamon, and pour over bread. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Remove from refrigerator 30 minutes before baking. Meanwhile, cream butter, brown sugar, and syrup until smooth. Spread over bread. Sprinkle with nuts. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for one hour or until golden brown.

ANSWER — Kris and Susan, readers from New Jersey, wanted a great recipe for baking Amish-type hard pretzels at home. Thanks to Bob Rumer, Jenkintown, for sending a recipe.

Dutch Hard Pretzels

1 package yeast
1½ cups lukewarm water
¾ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoon sugar
4 cups flour
1 egg, beaten with 1 tablespoon water
Coarse salt (optional)

Soften yeast in water. Add salt and sugar. Mix in flour and knead several minutes. Shape into long coils. Wrap ends of the coils up and around to form pretzel hands. Brush dough with egg and sprinkle with salt. Bake on foil-covered cookie sheet. Bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes, until golden brown.

ANSWER — Fern Gerth wanted a recipe for lime marmalade. Thanks to Bob Rumer, Jenkintown, for sending a recipe.

Lime Marmalade

4 cups thinly sliced limes, halved, seeded
7¼ cups water
7 cups sugar
2 drops green food coloring
8 drops yellow food coloring

Combine lime slices and water in an 8-quart saucepan. Bring to a boil over high heat. Reduce heat and simmer, uncovered for 45 minutes to an hour or until peels are very soft. Measure cooked fruit and liquid in heatproof measuring cup. For every cup of fruit and liquid, add one cup sugar. Stir in food coloring if desired. Bring to a boil and cook to jelly stage with a candy thermometer (220F, about 25 minutes). Stir occasionally. Skim off foam if necessary. Immediately fill hot sterilized ½ -pint jars, leaving ¼ -inch headspace. Wipe jar tops and threads clean. Place hot lids on hot jars and apply screw bands. Process 5 minutes in boiling water bath. Yield 5½ pints.

ANSWER — Thanks to numerous readers who have sent in recipes for lentils. These will be printed on the "Home On The Range" section in January.

Model Horse Show Winners In Dauphin County

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — Three Dauphin County 4-H'ers garnered awards at the first annual Pennsylvania State 4-H Model Horse Show held recently at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg

A model horse show provides an opportunity for 4-H members to learn and perfect the hobby of collecting and showing model horses In doing so, youngsters learn about breeds of horses, tack and equipment They also learn about principles of collecting and horse shows The model horse 4-H program is ideal for urban, suburban or rural youth who love horses, but may not be able to own or show live horses

In the senior division at the model horse show, Sheena Etzweiler won five classes. Arabians, Morgans, Western Pleasure, Draft Horse Driving, and Costume-Native or Historical. She also placed second in the Collector's Class, in the Customized by the Exhibitor with No Tack class, in Hunter Seat Pleasure, in Appaloosas, and in Quarter Horses. Sheena also took a third in Appaloosa, in Arabians, in Draft Horses, and in Pony Breeds. Also in the senior division, Allison Frank placed second in Thoroughbreds, and third in both Morgans and Paints/Pintos.

In the junior division, Brandy Lower took first and third place in the Appaloosa class, first in Arabians, and first in a Model Customized by the Exhibitor. She also took second in Open Costume-Native or Historical; second in Paints/Pintos; and third place in both English Performance and in Western Performance.

All three girls are from the Halifax area and are members of the Manely Models 4-H Club.

Grape Tomatoes

Grape tomatoes debuted in stores this spring, and grocers can hardly keep them on the shelves.

"They've gone ballistic. I haven't seen anything like this since kiwifruit," says Mike Zemla, head producer for the Acme chain. The tomatoes are the size and shape of Thompson seedless green grapes.

The tomatoes have a higher sugar content than even vine-ripe tomatoes, which is why they taste so good. They taste great as a snack, but they're spectacular in a cold salad of grilled summer squash, portabello mushrooms, olive oil and basil.

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — Diabetes is a condition in which the body fails to properly convert sugars, starches, and other foods into energy needed for the body to function properly. There are two types of diabetes—Type 1 and Type 2. Insulin-dependent or Type 1 diabetes (sometimes known as juvenile diabetes) is more rare and often appears in childhood, although sometimes it appears in an adult. It occurs more frequently in whites than in other racial groups. Type 1 happens suddenly with the following symptoms:

- extreme hunger and thirst
- frequent urination
- sudden weight loss
- weakness
- being sleepy or tired
- sudden changes in eyesight
- nausea and vomiting

The cause is a mystery. Some experts think type 1 is the result of an autoimmune disease—a condition in which the body attacks itself. An infection may set it off. New cases of type 1 are more common following viral infections such as mumps, measles, encephalitis, and rubella. Type 1 must be treated with daily injections of insulin when food is eaten.

Since diabetes increases the risk of heart disease, controlling a child's cholesterol level is important. Even children without diabetes can have arteries narrowed with plaques made of fat and cholesterol. Part of this problem is due to the high saturated fat diet we eat.

The University of Georgia Cooperative Extension recommends that children under the age of two should never have their fat intake restricted. However, after the age of two, parents should gradually reduce fat intake to 30 percent of a child's total calories. What fat the child does eat should be low in saturated fat. That means more liquid oils and less solid fat should be in the child's diet.

To achieve this goal, University of Georgia extension specialists suggest the following

- Keep meat, fish, and poultry portions to about 2-3 ounces per serving
- Use soft or liquid margarine in small amounts instead of stick margarine.
- Snack on fruit or low-fat and reduced fat dairy products and whole grain breads and cereals.
- If you fry at all, use only liquid oils.
- Limit convenience foods and fast foods.

According to the University of Georgia, diabetes experts recommend that a child with diabetes have a cholesterol test once a year. Ideally total cholesterol should be under 170 milligrams per decaliter and LDL-cholesterol (the bad kind) should be under 110 miligrams per decaliter. If cholesterol levels are high, saturated fat and cholesterol intake will need to be reduced more.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Mae Anthony, Aquashicola, wanted a recipe to make pudding that is steamed in a bag. Thanks to Nola Brion, Liberty, for sending two recipes.

Steamed Spotted Dick
Old English Recipe

6-ounces flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
4-ounces suet
Pinch salt

Mix ingredients with cold water until firm enough to roll into oblong shape.

Sprinkle with sugar and raisins before rolling up firmly and sealing the edges.

Tie in a well-floured pudding cloth and boil steadily for 2½ hours. Drain well. Remove from cloth and serve on hot dish. Pour maple syrup over it and serve hot.

Plum Pudding

3 cups sifted flour
1 cup finely chopped suet
½ teaspoon mace
½ teaspoon cloves
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 teaspoons cream of tartar
1 cup raisins
3 eggs
½ pint milk
1½ cups brown sugar
1 cup currants

Mix together all ingredients thoroughly. Place in cloth bag and tie tightly. Put in boiling water. Cook 3 hours. Serve with favorite sauce.

ANSWER — Thanks to Mildred Huffman for sending another solution to soggy pie crusts. In addition to baking on the bottom shelf, she has found the best way to solve the problem with bottom-crust pies is to swish beaten egg over crust before baking. After swishing, making sure the crust is well covered, use the egg in your pie recipe.

M. Martin, Ephrata, writes that she coats the crusts of fruit pies with powdered sugar before adding the filling and baking.

ANSWER — Marie Anderson, Dover, wanted a recipe for mashed potato candy. Thanks to Norma McClure, York; Anna Joyce Martin, East Earl; Debbie Reynolds, Wrightsville, and others for sending recipes.

Potato Candy Pinwheels

1 medium potato
2½ to 3½ cup powdered sugar
Crunchy peanut butter

Boil potato and mash. Add powdered sugar in small amounts until mixture is at a rolled dough stage.

Roll out to approximately ¼ -inch thick. Spread evenly with peanut butter and carefully roll up, jelly roll style. Chill 5 hours or overnight. Slice into ¼ - or ½ -inch pieces. Serve chilled.

Norma writes that she has used leftover mashed potatoes and boiled potatoes for this.

Mrs. Jacob Novinger, Millersburg, sent in the same recipe except she adds 1 teaspoon vanilla for the potato-sugar mixture. The recipe is from her mothers who would be in her 90s if she were still living.

Here are two different versions from a Depression Era cookbook from Debbie.

Potato Candy

1 pound powdered sugar
1 large potato, peeled, boiled, mashed
¼ pound semi-sweet chocolate

Combine sugar and mashed potatoes; mix until smooth. Place in buttered square pan. Melt chocolate and pour over mixture in pan. Chill two hours. Cut into squares.

Potato Coconut Candy

¼ cup mashed potatoes
1 pound powdered sugar
1 package fine coconut
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 squares unsweetened chocolate

Combine mashed potatoes, sugar, coconut, and vanilla, mix well. Press into greased 9x13-inch pan. Melt chocolate and pour over mixture. Spread thinly. Cool and cut into squares.

ANSWER — Maxine Poole, Nottingham, wanted a recipe to make potato filling that tastes like that served at Shady Maple, East Earl. Thanks to many readers for sending recipes. Here is one from Debbie Reynolds, Wrightsville.

Potato Stuffing

5 pounds potatoes, peeled, boiled, mashed
2 loaves bread, tear into pieces
2 cups chopped onion
3 cups chopped celery
6 eggs
½ cup parsley
¾ pound butter
Salt and pepper

Saute onions and celery in melted butter until soft. Add to bread cubes. Beat potatoes with eggs and add milk. Mix all ingredients together and place in buttered pan. Bake 375 degrees for 1 hour until light brown. Serves 25.

Here's a recipe to serve 6-8, from Anna Joyce Martin, East Earl.

Potato Stuffing Casserole

¼ cup chopped celery
1 onion, chopped
4 tablespoons butter, divided
3 slices bread, cubed
4-5 potatoes, peeled, cooked, mashed ¼ cup chopped fresh parsley
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup hot milk
1 egg, beaten
Additional parsley

In a medium skillet, saute celery and onion in butter until tender. Add bread cubes and stir until lightly browned. Stir in potatoes, parsley, salt, pepper, milk, and egg; mix well. Spoon into a greased baking dish. Dot with remaining butter. Bake at 350 degrees, uncovered, for 30-40 minutes or until lightly browned. Garnish with additional parsley. Yields 6-8 servings.

ANSWER — Mike wanted to know where to purchase goat and sheep milk in Schuylkill County. Thanks to Lena Schaeffer for writing that her family has a licensed dairy to sell raw goat milk and Grade A dairy. They live in Strausstown, just outside of Schuylkill County. Bring your own jug. Cost is $4 a gallon.

ANSWER — Anne Losten, Elkton, Md., wanted a recipe for green tomato jam. Thanks to Emma Snyder, who sent in a family favorite.

Green Tomato Jam

2½ cups pureed green tomatoes
2 cups sugar
3-ounce package raspberry-flavored gelatin

In a large saucepan, bring tomatoes and sugar to a boil. Reduce heat, simmer uncovered for 20 minutes. Remove from heat, stir in gelatin until dissolved. Skim off any foam. Pour into jars or freezer containers, leaving ½ -inch headspace. Cool before turning on lids. Refrigerate or freeze. Yield: about 3 cups.

How Do Birds Know How, Where To Migrate?

EBENSBURG (Cambria Co.) — Every year about this time, and again in the spring, most of us look up in the sky at flocks of birds on the wing, and we wonder how they know to head south and how they know where they're going.

Bird migration is one of nature's most remarkable. Although science has yet to explain the hows and whys fully, we are gaining some insight into migration.

It seems that some birds take their cue from day length, also known as photoperiod. Photoperiod is classified as an "external cue." We believe that shortening day length in some way induces what we call "migratory restlessness," which is accompanied by increased feeding. A bird suffering from migratory restlessness puts on weight, accumulates body fat, gets restless, and then takes off.

Pre-migratory fat buildup can be extensive. Bobolinks add 50 percent of their body weight before migration! Lots of body fat is essential, because migration is a demanding activity. Some birds lost almost one percent of their body weight per hour while migrating. The plover, for example, has been known to fly 2,400 miles nonstop in 37 hours at speeds of 60 to 70 miles per hour. The rufous hummingbird travels 4,000 from its Alaskan breeding ground to its Mexican wintering ground. Many of the migratory songbirds we see in our area stop three to five days to put on more fat before resuming their seasonal journey.

Food supplies are probably more important in the progress of migration day length. Simply put, when the food supply runs out, the bird moves on.

And that leads us to the second question. Once a bird gets moving, how does it know where to go? Well, nature has provided more than one navigational strategy. Some birds use an inner "celestial compass and map." They orient themselves to the stars or the sun. Celestial navigation is used heavily by nocturnal migrants—birds that travel by night.

Diurnal migrants (day-travelers) that orient themselves to the sun need a backup system on cloudy days. Birds in this group fall back on using the earth's magnetic fields and their own "internal compass" to guide them.

Sound is another tool available to migrants. These birds make use of very low frequencies that travel great distances, such as wind in the trees, waves lapping on the shore, or water running in a river. These sounds serve as "audio landmarks."

Visual landmarks are the obvious way to navigate. Birds that use this method need good eyesight and usually are daytime migrants. Coastlines, rivers, and mountains are the most prominent landmarks these birds use.

There are seven main avian migration routes in this hemisphere, all of which run north-south. Beginning on the East Coast, they are: Atlantic Oceanic, Atlantic Coast, Appalachian Mountain (Hawk Mountain in Berks County is a prime site along this flyway), Mississippi, Central, Pacific Coast, and Pacific Oceanic. Songbirds typically use the Atlantic Coast, Mississippi, and Pacific Coast flyways. The raptors—eagles, hawks, and falcons—use the Appalachian Mountain flyway.

Not all avian migrants fly north and south, though. Some birds, including chickadees, jays, nuthatches, juncos, and kinglets, migrate altitudinally. In other words, they, like Heidi and Grandfather, come down from the mountain in winter.

Other species migrate along east-west routes. The red-headed duck nests in Bear River, Utah, and winters on the Atlantic Coast. Evening grosbeaks nest in the Midwest and come east for winter. The California gulls nest at Great Salt Lake and winters on the West Coast.

Much has been studied and written about avian migration, but even with all we know about it, one fact remains — it's amazing.

There are lots of ways to get more information about all kinds of wildlife species that use and live in Pennsylvania forests. You can get in touch with a private natural resource manager; you can call your local Bureau of Forestry office, which is listed in the blue pages under State Government; or you can call the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county.

You can also call the Pennsylvania Forest Stewardship Program's toll-free number: 1-800-235-WISE.

Do all birds fly in a "V"?

Canada geese — or other water birds such as ducks, pelicans and cranes — use the distinct "V" formation to get a little lift.

These birds move the air with their wings as they fly and leave a whirl of wind behind them. Each goose, flying a little to the side and rear of the goose ahead of it, rides the draft of air created by the goose in front of it. That way, every bird in the flock except the "lead" goose saves about one-third of its energy by flying in a V-shape. Being leader is the toughest job, so the geese take turns. Sometimes they trade off so often that they fly in long, wavy lines, instead of Vs.

Not all birds form this distinct pattern, though. Smaller birds, such as warblers, flock together in a big group. Scientists think they do this for protection from bigger, meat-eating birds looking for a meal. Think about it — it's much harder to pick out one bird from a big group than a little bird cruising along by itself.

Plus, migrating birds all fly different distances and speeds as they travel from one place to another. (Remember, not all birds migrate.) The American golden plover flies directly from the Aleutian Islands in southwest Alaska to Hawaii. The 2,000-plus mile flight — mostly over water — takes them about 35 hours to complete. But then other birds, who might fly just as fast, take more time to get to their destination because they stop frequently to rest and eat.

That philosophy has to be one of the most positive ideas in our society right now.

At a time when the daily news is filled with international violence and never-ending wars here and there, when rarely a week goes by without reports of murder and mayhem in our backyards, when adults batter little babies and kids shoot their peers, random acts of kindness are sweet honey against the bitter taste of anti-social behavior.

Random acts of kindness, of doing something nice for someone else, or for one's community, not because it's demanded or expected but out of genuine concern, are heartwarming. They're "warm fuzzies" to counter the daily prickly things that irritate us.

A recent random act of kindness sent me on my way with a grin and decidedly warm, fuzzy feeling

Headed for a morning meeting, I was only about a mile from home when I noticed a car following just behind me. I figured I was driving too slowly for the driver in back, though my speedometer read at the posted speed limit.

Enroute, I had planned to make a quick bank stop at the first small town. Coincidentally, the car traveling in my wake also pulled over, and parked directly behind me But the driver didn't get out I grabbed my purse and keys, exited the car and headed for the bank's front door, a route which took me directly past the driver in the now-familiar car.

The gentleman driver rolled down his window. Now what, I wondered defensively.

He apologized for appearing to interfere, then noted that he had been watching my left rear car wheel And it appeared to be wobbling badly.

"I'm an automobile mechanic and I notice things like that," he added. "I wouldn't want you to have an accident and get hurt."

An ominous feeling grabbed at the pit of my stomach

"Maybe I'd better go back home instead of to my meeting," I pondered. If my car had a problem, it was better to be three miles from home than 40 And though the car steering had felt no different than usual, this non-mechanic wasn't about to argue with a professional who was so obviously concerned.

"I have a garage right there," he added, pointing off around the corner from the bank. "Pull your car around and I'll have someone take a look at it."

I thanked him, concerned that it would be extra trouble for him No trouble at all, he assured me

The Good Samaritan mechanic promptly wheeled out a jack, positioned it under my car and lifted the left side. Then he spun the wheel and observed it carefully. The wheel seemed fine

"Let me try one more thing," he suggested Retrieving a section of a two-by-four, he held it next to the wheel, then gave the tire a good spin. No wobble. His practiced eye studied it and decided the wobble had been an optical illusion created by some mud stuck to the tire

By then, I had figured out who this "mechanic" was Mr Al Prueitt has a family business, obscurely tucked away in our small rural town of Glen Rock, but renowned for its restoration expertise on classic and notable automobiles Checking over my 10-year-old, 100,000-mile-plus car, was an automotive Picaso Who took time to help a stranger with a possible problem simply because he cared

That act of concern was truly touching Thanks, Mr Prueitt, from this recipient of your random act of kindness

It made my day

Bleeding Colors

Washable dual-color garments, such as light-colored shirts with dark collars may bleed in the washer. Although labeled "washable," dark-colored, water soluble, dye stuffs may spot the lighter areas of a garment or other garments. Generally, the heavier the fabric, the greater the propensity for dye bleeding.

This problem will lessen with repeated washings and it helps to move wet clothes to the dryer quickly.

If there is a slight dye transfer, repeated washing before being dried will also help to eliminate the dye transfer.

Maple Sweetheart Touts Amber-Hued Commodity

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MARKELTON (Somerset Co.) — Laura Sanner's enthusiasm for Pennsylvania maple syrup enabled her to capture the title of Pennsylvania Maple Sweetheart.

Laura, the 17-year-old daughter of Kenneth and Tracy Sanner, represented the Somerset County Maple Producer's Association at an annual maple tour hosted by the Northeastern Association.

Using different pitches of voice, the young, brown-eyed woman portrayed not only a school teacher, but also her pupils in a classroom discussion about all-natural, maple syrup

"Tommy, Susie, Kimmy, and Jimmy," showed good thinking skills by asking intelligent questions about the origin of maple syrup. They were curious how a collection of water from sugar maple trees could be turned into pure syrup.

The Sanner Sugar Camp passed directly from Laura's great-grandfather to her dad and his brother — her uncle Charlie Sanner. The maple operation is a partnership

Charlie's wife, Jane, is responsible for the gift packs and makes the candies, creams, and novelty products derived from the syrup.

Having grown up with maple sugaring, Laura anticipates relaying to the public her knowledge of the industry. As official ambassador for the five maple associations inside Pennsylvania, she is committed to execute the responsibilities with grace

No doubt, she will strive to present the amber-hued commodity in its most golden light and tout its magnificent flavor — "I like to tell people how good it tastes," she said

Facts and figures must be memorized if she hopes to prove the natural product a better choice for consumers, than the imitations located so handily on the shelves of neighborhood food markets. Pure maple syrup has a distinctive quality needing no preservatives to maintain its freshness and flavor.

If arrangements beforehand can be made, the state maple sweetheart will bestow a basket of maple goodies from the Keystone State on the staff of the Today Show on Nov. 19

On this auspicious date, Laura will be enjoying a trip into New York City in celebration of her senior year at the Rockwood Area High School She will be accompanied by her mother

"Even if they just come to me in a crowd" Laura said, of the morning TV show hosts, "it would be enough"

Tracy Sanner has her own ideas why the eldest of four children will succeed in her new role

"I can tell you what makes her a good person for the job," interjected Mrs. Sanner "She loves the stuff."

According to feedback from their clients who have shipped the Sanner Camp gift packs abroad, Mrs. Sanner reports that in some countries — China, for instance — having maple syrup in one's possession is almost equal to owning gold itself

Laura Sanner, the new state maple sweetheart, sits by the fireplace with a maple leaf throw and a new maple bucket given to her by Vo-Ag students. Laura loves pure maple syrup. As Pennsylvania State Maple Sweetheart, the 17-year-old Markelton young woman will boast of its goodness on pancakes.

"We always ask how they (clients) are shipping it," said Mrs. Sanner. "Tin ships better than plastic."

Laura's new title, though but a month old, has already shifted priorities for Sanner and the six-member family. Sister Laura is 16; Craig is 12; and Rachel is 7.

Although Laura is blessed with a car and driver's license, extracurricular activities like cheerleading, may be relegated to a lesser priority when a maple promo is scheduled.

As an Eat-N-Park restaurant hostess, Laura will also be juggling a job schedule.

She will man the state maple producer's booth next January at the Farm Show and sparkles with anticipation over the exciting and glamorous Governor's Ball which all state-level queens attend as honored guests.

In Somerset County, Laura is laying groundwork for school visits by trying to plan a mini feast of wee pancakes with maple syrup for lower elementary children

Marty Corey, from Austin, represented the Potter-Tioga Association with a presentation, and Nicole Bishop from Springsville, represented the Endless Mountains Association.

Laura succeeds Alicia Dengler of Saegerstown who was sponsored by the Northwestern Association.

Baked Beans

1 large can baked beans
1/2 cup pure maple syrup
4 tablespoons ketchup
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 small onion, chopped
bacon (sliced)

Mix first five ingredients and place in a casserole dish. Top with bacon strips. Bake uncovered for one hour at 350 degrees.

Maple Syrup Cookies

3 cups plus 2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
1 cup maple syrup
1 cup dates, cut
1 cup nuts, chopped
3/4 cup chopped coconut
1/4 cup boiling water

Cream butter and maple syrup Beat well Blend in dates, nuts, coconut and sifted dry ingredients. Blend in boiling water Chill in refrigerator one or two hours. Drop by teaspoons on ungreased cookie sheet Bake at 350 degrees 10 to 12 minutes or until light brown When cooled completely, frost with buttercream icing Yield 6 dozen

Buttercream Icing

1/4 cup butter, melted
2 tablespoons cream
1 tablespoon maple syrup
2 cups powdered sugar

In mixing bowl, add maple syrup to melted butter and blend well. Add powdered sugar alternately with cream, blending well after each addition. Beat until smooth.

4-H Members, Volunteer Leaders Recognized

4-H Members ranging in age from eight to 18 along with dedicated adult volunteer leaders of the Cumberland Coutny 4-H Program were recognized at the 1999 Achievement Night

4-H, a youth development program of Penn State Cooperative Extension, assists youth in acquiring knowledge, developing life skills, and forming attitudes that will enable boys and girls to become self-directing, productive, and contributing members of society

State Horse Show Results

Eleven 4-H members from Susquehanna County participated in the State Horse Show in Harrisburg in October.

County winners in 4-H performance classes were Ashley and Megan Smith, eighth in pleasure pairs, Brittany Brainard, 10th in hunter hack horses, and Tiffany Cobb, seventh in working hunter horses.

In 4-H production classes, members breed and raise their own project animals. Sarah Bishop placed third with her Appaloosa yearling filly. Megan Smith received a second and a fourth placing with her stock type yearling filly and filly of the year, respectively

To be eligible for the state show, 4-H'ers had to advance through qualifying competitions at the county and district levels. The other participants from Susquehanna County were Ashely Gaffey, Tami Cobb, Bonnie Hayer-Boraski, Jessie Casella, Maggie Jones, and Michelle Cavanaugh.

The State 4-H Horse Show each year provides 4-H'ers with an opportunity to display their horsemanship skills. The primary purpose of the 4-H Horse program is to develop life skills in youth and skills in horse management. Through competition, the 4-H'ers develop riding skills, gain self-confidence and learn proper care of animals

More than 800 4-H members competed at the State Horse Show, which culminates the year for approximately 7,000 Pennsylvania 4-H members enrolled in horse and pony clubs

Katherine and Cary Albright are outstanding girl and outstanding boy for the Bedford County 4-H Clubs.

Consuming Thoughts

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.

Your dream of "chestnuts roasting on an open fire" last Christmas was ruined. The stored chestnuts were covered with mold. All your hard work in harvesting the nuts went down the drain. But spoilage can be avoided if you store chestnuts correctly.

Fresh chestnuts contain 40 to 45 percent carbohydrate, 5 percent oil, and about 50 percent moisture. It is the moisture that makes them so perishable. Chestnut spoilage is almost always due to mold.

There are four ways to prevent mold from developing. The mold organisms must be destroyed by heat, or the moisture content of the nutmeats must be 10 percent or lower, the relative humidity of the storage area must be 70 percent or lower, or the storage temperature must be 32°F or lower

To destroy the mold on chestnuts, treat the nuts in a warm water bath (125°F) for one hour A cooking temperature lower than 125°F will not kill the mold organisms. A higher temperature will damage the nuts. The nuts may then be stored in perforated polyethylene bags for two months at 40°F

You can prevent spoilage by drying, too. To dry the nuts, place them in mesh bags and hold them at 40°F for four days in an area that has well-circulated dry air, or dry them in food dryers for 4-8 hours at 110°F. this reduces the nuts' moisture content to 10 percent; dried nuts can be held for more than a year in a cool, dry area Nuts dried this way must be moistened by soaking or steaming for about 30 minutes before use.

You can store freshly harvested chestnuts at 34°F without any preparation, too. Chestnuts are at an optimum temperature and moisture content at this temperature You can freeze only the hot water "blanched" chestnuts and the dried chestnuts Those, that are only stored at 34°F will be injured by freezing

Keep chestnuts dry on the surface at all times to prevent slime and recontamination with mold Storage at 40°F or lower is essential in preventing insect infestation, also.

The best way to shell chestnuts depends on the way you like to eat them—either boiled or roasted, since the flavor differs slightly with the method of preparation

Slash through the shell by cutting an "X" Blanch chestnuts by putting them in boiling water and letting stand 2 minutes. Remove a few at a time, cool slightly, then peel with a paring knife

If nuts are difficult to peel, return them to the hot water for another minute or two Roasting also will loosen the skins of chestnuts Remove shells and skins while nuts are warm

For microwave oven method, cut an "X" on the flat side of the chestnut, making sure it goes deep enough to cut through the brown shell, and cut into the inner skin. This prevents steam from building up and exploding the contents of the nut all over the inside of the oven

Make a circle of cut nuts around a paper plate an inch or so from· the edge. Cover with another paper plate, inverted, or a paper towel. Microwave on full power for a minute. Test one to see if the shell and inner peel come off easily by prying with a paring knife If not, microwave another 30 seconds, which should be sufficient, unless the nuts are large.

To roast or toast, spread nuts on a shallow pan or baking sheet Heat at about 350°F moderate oven for 5 to 12 minutes, or until lightly browned stirring occasionally

Toasting may also be done in a heavy pan on top of the range Heat nut meats slowly for 10 to 15 minutes until lightly browned stirring frequently

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — Amos Petersheim, Lykens, wanted to know where to buy new and used paint rollers with rubber designs on them. He needs parts to go with the rollers and thought someone might have some stuck away in their attics. Write to Amos at 554 N. Crossroads, Lykens, PA 17048.

QUESTION — Dixie Fix, Harrisonville, needs three Readers' Digest books to complete her collection. She will pay a reasonable price for the following: Winter 1950, Vol M and 1980-1981.

QUESTION — Samuel Beiler, Jersey Shore, needs the address for Flavorseal Cookware or a place where it can be repaired. A letter sent to Cory Corp. 3200 W. Peterson, Chicago, Ill. came back marked "forwarding expired."

QUESTION — Ann would like to know where to find gaskets for 3- and 6-quart Mirro Pressure Cooker and for the pressure cooker that requires a pressure control with three holes in it for 5-10-15 pounds. The company told her that it no longer makes the gaskets.

QUESTION — Harold R. Stoudt, Hamburg, is in search of a rust inhibitor for a Drain Back Solar Domestic Hot Water System. The inhibitor must be non-toxic so that the water would be suitable for human consumption in case of leaks and it must mix well with water.

QUESTION — Anna Bryan writes that years ago her mom had an angel food cake pan with a lid on top. She asks where she can find one with a lid.

QUESTION — Mrs. Glenn Miller, HC 62, Box 660, Honesdale, PA 18431 wants to purchase a used Stanley Wood cookstove in good condition.

QUESTION — Brenda Fouts, Auburn, N.Y., writes that her string beans are loaded with mature, seedy pods that are starting to dry out. She wants to know if the beans can be used in lieu of navy beans and how should they be dried to preserve? For those who are interested, Brenda writes that she used a newer variety of green beans called Vilbel. She writes that the beans are superb, with long, slender, and sweet beans that hang on like spaghetti. She recommends that others give the prolific variety a try. She found the seed at Agway.

QUESTION — Spencer Stamy, Newville, wanted to know of someone who deals in stanchions, glass pipeline, vacuum pumps, milkers, etc. from discontinued dairy operations.

QUESTION — John A. Stoltzfus, HCR1, Box 26, Rebersburg, PA 16872, wants to buy a butter churn that fits a Maytag wringer washer. He also wants a butter press in good condition.

QUESTION — Carolyn Tyndall writes that her mom, who 87-years-old, fears she is losing her memory because she can't remember day-to-day things. She does remember the words to some songs she heard her mother sing. She hasn't heard the songs in more than 80 years, but it would mean a lot to her if someone could help her with the missing words o titles to the following:

"...her grave I watered with my tears, that's wher. these flowers grew. And don't forget to tell her, sir. These floweres were sent by me."

Title is needed for the poem:

"Hello, Central. Give me heaven, for my mama's surely there. You will find her with the angels on the golden stair.

"She'll be glad it's me who's calling. Call her. Won't you please. For I surely want to tell her I'm so lonely here.

"When the girl received this message coming o'er the telephone, how her heart leaped in a moment and the wire seemed to moan.

"I will answer just to please her, yes dear heart I'll soon come home. Kiss me Mamma, kiss your darling. Kiss me o'er the telephone."

QUESTION — R.E. Wilhelm writes that last summer she visited Lancaster County. At a produce stand, Wilhelm saw a young Amish girl wearing an apron, the front was one piece probably cut on the bias because it fit like a dress. The wide back straps were criss-crossed. QUESTION — Dorothy Starr, 480 Stover Shop Rd., Churchvill, Va. 24421, would like to buy milk bottles of all sizes from Indian Run Dairy and from Fishers Golden Guernsey Dairy of Danville.

QUESTION — Lois K. Martin, Bridgewater, VA, wants to purchase the following books written by Anne Colver: "Bread and Butter Indian," "Bread and Butter Journey." She would also like the book, "Lucinda," written by Vesta-Nadine Severs.

QUESTION — Suzy Almony wants a set of red and white "Currier and Ives" plates made in the U.S.A. by Homer Laughlin.

QUESTION — Karen Mull, Elizabethtown, would like to know where to purchase an agitator for an electric butter churn manufactured by Alabama Manufacturing Co. The agitator is plastic. The motor sets on top of a barrel shaped 3-gallon jar. The agitator fits on the lid inside the jar. The company must have gone out of business because letters addressed to the address on the motor are returned. Anyone know where to find an agitator?

ANSWER — A reader wrote that after seeing a sandstone water trough sold at a farm sale, she had some questions: Is sandstone still mined? Do people still buy and sell sandstones and are they used for anything in particular?

Thanks to Robert Long, Clearfield, who writes that active sandstone quarry operations are ongoing in western Jefferson and northern Indiana counties. Due to the difficulty acquiring permits to deep mine or surface quarry limestone, sandstone is being used to a greater extent as a substitute road base material in new road construction. In addition, large individual sandstones inscribed with messages are popping up on many homeowners' properties. If installed and engraved properly, these can be quite attractive.

Ida's Notebook

by

Ida Risser

It seems that the busy days on the farm are not finished as yet. There was alfalfa to be put in the silo and rye to be seeded. Our son worked all hours to accomplish these tasks as rain was expected

In the garden there is work too as the sweet potatoes are not dug. The ground is simply too wet. Even so, I dug some flower bulbs to be stored in the basement. There are gladiolas, tube roses, canna and calla bulbs, aztex lilies, Peruvian lilies, elephant ear bulbs and black India lilies. I hope there is room for all of them as next spring I will plant them again except for some that will be left out to freeze.

There are lots of houseplants to water and tend all winter long Some of the 94 pots contain pink, red or white impatiens. It is pleasant to see them bloom when there is snow outside

This weekend we have several couples invited for Sunday supper and so I must plan a menu. Our travelogue is also this weekend as is a babysitting job. Of course, all three are enjoyable and so we try to plan time for everything.

The past two weeks there were five birthdays and anniversaries in our family So we took time to write cards and notes and hope they will arrive on time. It is different to gauge the amount of time that the postal service will take to deliver mail

It is nice to get mail on the proper day but mail anytime is welcome as long as it is not letters soliciting money All one needs to do is send a few dollars and then the letters come regularly. If only we knew which causes are really important There are simply too many to support all over the world

Honey Bees At Risk This Winter

NEWARK, Del — An increase in the number of bee mites in a recent sampling, coupled with the effects of the drought, may lead to a difficult winter ahead for honey bees, says Dr Dewey Caron, University of Delaware professor of entomology and Extension specialist for bees.

Caron and the Mid-Atlantic Apicultural Research and Extension Consortium (MAAREC) suggest that beekeepers be prepared.

"A combination of the stress from mites and disease, along with the low stores of honey because of reduced flower production, may spell trouble," says Caron. "Beekeepers may need to feed sugar syrup to their colonies this winter so the honey bees can survive."

Not so many years ago, raising honey bees was a relatively straightforward task requiring some understanding of bees and management strategies, along with a certain amount of vigilance. Apiary management, however, was not the challenge it has become today.

According to Caron, the catalyst for the change was the arrival of two bee mites in America in the 1980s. Before long, the trachael mite and the varroa mite had infected large numbers of honey bees throughout the country.

"By 1985, the trachael mite was discovered in Delaware, with the varroa mite identified in 1992. Since then, feral or unmanaged colonies of bees have all but disappeared from the state, and even managed colonies have taken huge losses," he said.

"The winter of 1995-1996 was particularly severe in Delaware," said Caron "Colony numbers managed by beekeepers fell from an estimated 3,000 to 4,000 a decade earlier to only 1,500 colonies by the end of the winter. For the first time, the number of bee colonies available for agricultural pollination in Delaware was judged to be insufficient to meet the minimum crop needs."

According to Caron, the numbers of colonies have been inching up slowly over the past few years to a high of 2,000 colonies in Delaware today. Because these numbers are insufficient to meet pollination needs, an additional 1,500 to 2,000 colonies are brought in each summer by migratory beekeepers from Maryland, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania who keep bees in wagons and travel from field to field as flowers blossom.

Another concern is that the routine application of medications may promote resistance in the mite population, and such resistance has already been documented for varroa mites.

ANSWER — Dixie Fix, Harrisonville, acquired a Singer treadle sewing machine 128-3 and wanted a long bobbin to fit it. Thanks to the many readers who sent her the bobbin. This is a reminder to other readers who receive answers through the mail. Let us know when your request is answered so we can remove it from this column.

ANSWER — A reader wrote that she collects Readers' Digest Condensed Books and wanted to compare lists to find out the two volumes she is missing up to the 200th volume. Thanks to Dixie Fix, Harrisonville, who writes that also collects the series. Call Dixie to update your list: (717) 485-3876.

ANSWER — For the person who wanted directions to make sachets, a reader recommends the book, "Scentsations," by Nancy M. Booth. My Sweet Victoria has a mailorder catalog that sells the book, dried materials, fragrances, soap making kits, gift items, etc. Write for catalog at Gingham 'N Spice, Ltd., Box 88-SB, Gardenville, PA 18926.

"The Soap Book," by Sandy Maine, contains simple herbal recipes. Address is Sunfeather Herbal Soap Co., 1551 Hwy 72, Potsdam, NY 13676.

ANSWER — Laurel Wilkinson heard there is a woman named Pat Anderson, Dover, who has a unique hobby of story telling using Pennsylvania Dutch humor and wanted to know how to contact her. Thanks to Lois Crone, Wellsville, writes that Pat's phone number is (717) 292-2149.

ANSWER — For Alma Martin who wanted teddy bear patterns, Rhoda Stauffer said write to her and specify the size wanted: 28455 Point Lookout Rd., Leonardtown, MD 20650.

ANSWER — For the Newburg reader who wanted to know how to rid antique furniture of post hole beetles, Scott Bordner, Enola, writes that the only way to rid furniture of wood-destroying insects and not harm the wood is to fumigate with toxic gas. J.C. Emlich in Reading has a chamber to fumigate furniture or contact a pest control company that is licensed to fumigate. The cost is expensive and may not be cost effective to treat one item.

ANSWER — Sharyn Ziegler-Maier, York, wrote that she puchased two blacksmith prints and one mill print by artist Paul Detlefsen. She wanted information about the artist. Thanks to E.M. Deeter, Jr., Mechanicsburg, who wrote that he has some information about the painter. Detlefsen, who did contract work for Brown and Bigelow, did a number of paintings that were very popular. In addition to the ones mentioned, he did "Boy Crossing the Stream," "Railroad Depot," and others. Deeter has a Detlefsen original painting of Mount Vernon. Detlefsen died in the 1970s. Deeter would also like additional information if anyone has some.

Pennsylvania DHIA Year-End Reports

The end-of-year results of Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement records for 1999 show that a Holstein herd from Center County has a rolling herd average to complete the year that is first in all three components, milk, protein, and fat. Valleys-End Farm, Rebersburg, have 73 cows that produced 32,071m 1,285f 1,036p. Scott and Karen Nolt, Lebanon, had the second high rolling herd average in milk and protein with 101 cows producing 31,844m 1,070f 1,005 p. Junge Farms, New Tripoli had the second high average for fat with 88 cows producing 30,429m 1,183f 1001p.

The top producing cow in the state in both milk and protein was No. 12 in the herd of Frederick Farms, Martinsburg in Blair County. This Holstein produced 48,462m 1,637p 2,236f. No. 12 was second in fat production.

The top producing cow in the state for fat was Aggie in the herd of Tayacres Farm, Delta, York County. This Holstein produced 37,918m 1,167p 2,355f. Her test was 6.2 percent.

In the Holstein breed, the top 25 cows all produced over 41,000 pounds of milk.

Greg and Sheryl Seeley from Canton in Bradford County had the lowest somatic cell count in their milk from 44 cows. The record was 51,000.

PaDHIA year-end results are based on September results. The rest of the year, the top producing herds and cows are reported monthly.

FUNCTIONAL INGREDIENTS FOR VALUE-ADDED POULTRY PRODUCTS

Edward Mills
Associate Professor Department Of Dairy And Animal Science

Makers of value-added poultry products are constantly searching for ways to improve those products. Improved palatability, product shelf-life, or ease of manufacturing are all goals which might lead a manufacturer to experiment with one of the hundreds of functional ingredients available.

A wide variety of flavor ingredients are available for use in poultry products. Unique flavors such as those of bacon, cheeses, or even butter may be used to give a distinguishing flavor profile to a product. Chicken or turkey flavors may be used to enhance the natural flavor of precooked poultry products. Also, flavor ingredients may be used in products such a cooked turkey breast to impart oven roasted or broiled flavors while actually heating the product in a more efficient cook-in-bag or steam cook system. This allows the manufacturer more flexibility to offer a wider variety of product types that reach a broader segment of the consumer market.

The flavor ingredients used for these applications are often produced from the same types of flavor precursors found naturally in poultry or meat products — amino acids, nucleic acids, and reducing sugars. By carefully controlling reaction conditions such as temperature, pressure and concentration, flavor manufacturers are able to produce ingredients that impart the distinctive flavors of almost any product.

In spite of the sophistication of the controls used in flavor ingredient manufacture, flavor chemistry is still more art than science. Each manufacturer's proprietary procedures for making a particular flavor are kept as closely protected trade secrets.

While flavor enhancement is important, much of the product development effort by poultry processors focuses on product juiciness. The challenge is to deliver a juicy product to the consumer while limiting the release of fluid during distribution and retail display.

Poultry muscle naturally contains up to 78 percent water and additional water is commonly added during the manufacture of precooked products. Upon heating, the muscle proteins lose much of their ability to bind water. Several different water-binding agents may be used to help the meat hold water and remain juicy.

Carrageenan may be the most commonly used water-binding agent in cooked poultry products. Carrageenan is a hydrocolloid derived from red kelp, a seaweed. Carrageenan ingredients are often chosen for their ability to bind water at higher temperatures when meat proteins are being denatured. Carrageenan may also interact directly with meat proteins, thus improving cohesion for deli items that might be sliced very thin.

Non-meat proteins such as soy, casein, whey, or even corn protein may be used to improve water binding in cooked poultry products. These protein ingredients may also have the benefit of contributing to fat binding in products such as lunchmeats or hot dogs. Protein ingredients, especially soy products, may impart a distinctive flavor when included in poultry items. Using highly purified protein isolate can reduce such flavors. However, even the protein isolate can give detectable flavor in mildly seasoned poultry products such as deli style turkey breast. Soy flavors are much less detectable in products such as salami, smoked sausage, or luncheon meats that are more heavily seasoned.

Starches may also be used as water binders. Potato, tapioca, and corn starches are commonly used. Starches may be pregelatinized or otherwise modified to improve their function in poultry products. Starches bind water but do not interact with meat proteins so their presence often leads to a softening of the product texture. This can be quite beneficial in low-fat products where a rubbery texture may occur.

Konjac is a water binder with unique gelling properties. It is a hydrocolloid derived from the flour of several varieties of a tuber commonly cultivated in Asia and Japan. Konjac hydrates easily, increasing the viscosity of water in poultry products. In addition, with mild alkali treatment, Konjac forms a heat-stable gel. Some poultry and meat manufacturers have been successful in using this heat-stable gel form of Konjac as a fat replacer. Konjac interacts synergistically with carrageenan to improve water binding and impart a fat-like "mouth feel" in oven-roasted turkey breast with very low fat content.

Curdlan (Pureglucantm) is a relatively new water binder and gelling agent. This polysaccharide is a fermentation product produced by an Alcaligenes bacteria. In poultry products, Curdlan exhibits its greatest moisture absorption at 50-60 degrees Centigrade when muscle proteins are rapidly losing their water binding ability. The manufacturer of Curdlan suggests that it can be beneficial in a variety of meat and poultry products. However, most poultry processors are not familiar with its functionality.

Appearance is a primary determinant of consumer acceptance of value-added poultry products. A pink internal color is stabilized by the addition of sodium nitrite in cured products such as turkey ham or smoked turkey breast.

Smoking or oven roasting may achieve surface colors ranging from mahogany to golden tan or brown. No color ingredients are currently approved for adding internal color, but poultry processors may choose from a number of ingredients that may be used to enhance the surface appearance of their products.

Caramel color is commonly applied to give surface colors ranging from tan to brown without imparting any flavor. Liquid smoke may be used when both flavor and surface color are desired. Liquid smoke must be applied before cooking and, unlike caramel coloring, requires dry heat cooking to develop surface color. In some instances, flavorings or spices may be used to modify the color or appearance of cooked poultry products. Paprika, molasses, soy sauce, and others may be used to impart both flavor and color to value-added poultry products.

With consumer tastes constantly changing, makers of value-added poultry products must continue to offer new flavors, shapes, sizes, and colors. An ever-growing selection of functional ingredients makes this task a little easier.

Odor Research Field Day Nov. 9

WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — An odor research field day is scheduled Tuesday, Nov. 9, from 10:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. at the Jeff Frey Swine Farm near here.

The purpose of the field day is to provide producers and the public with an opportunity to see biofil ters that were installed on the swine grower finisher buildings at the Frey Farm.

The study included a total of nine Pennsylvania farms on which one of three technologies were used to reduce odor emissions: dust filtration of exhausted air, floating straw covers for outside manure storages, and biofiltration of exhausted air.

Effectiveness of the odor remediation measures was evaluated by direct odor measurement and by surveying neighbors who live near the swine operations.

Based on the data collected thus far, biofilters, such as the one at the Frey Farm, show promise for being an effective odor-reducing method.

The research project is sponsored by The Pennsylvania State University, The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, and The Pennsylvania Pork Producers Council. Allied industry participants include Hostetter Management, Purina Mills, and Farmer Boy Ag Systems.

Researchers Ken Kephart and Robert Mikesell will be available throughout the day to answer questions as well as Lancaster County Extension Agent Leon Ressler. A brief presentation will be made at 12:30 p.m. A free lunch will be served.

New Process 'Rehabilitates' Poultry Houses

BUENA VISTA, Va. — Local Lancaster County farm services company, Beitzel Spraying Service, is working with Environmental Dynamics, Inc to introduce the company's new process for the rehabilitation of poultry houses.

The process is called the Impact Program. It is a process for deep cleansing of poultry house floors that eradicates diseases such as dermatitis, enteritis, and fowl cholera that plague the Pennsylvania poultry industry

Environmental Dynamics, Inc., has patents pending on the use of its products in the poultry industry Besides the poultry house floor treatment to recover houses from disease conditions, the company uses a naturally occurring bacteria to inoculate litter and crowd out potentially harmful bacteria. This product is called Impact-P(NA) and its use is known as "ecological intervention."

Benefits of Impact use include stabilization of nutrients, nitrogen, and phosphorus through its composting action; reduction of odors by biological degradation; and reduction of pathogen load in the growing environment by ecological intervention and competitive inhibition. Known as "the litter vaccine," Impact-P(NA) literally crowds out harmful bacteria.

Sports 'N Turf Sets Open House

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — With a shiny new showroom, Sports 'N Turf has relocated just across the street from its former address on North Reading Road.

The larger facility contains 36,000 square feet and is stocked for the upcoming season. The company employs 11 full-time and four part-time.

Dennis L. Steffy purchased the business in February 1998 from longtime owner Roger Auker, who remains general manager of Sports 'N Turf.

Sports 'N Turf is an authorized dealer for Polaris snowmobiles, ATV Personal Watercraft, Victory motorcycles, and garments and accessories. The company also carries a line of Ski-Doo snowmobiles, Toro consumer lawn and garden equipment, and commercial landscape contractor equipment. Sports 'N Turf is also a Scag landscape contractor and sells Cab Cadet consumer lawn and garden equipment and compact tractors. Carter go carts and Worthington trailers and snowmobiles are also shown at this facility.

The company has scheduled an open house Nov. 11 at noon. Hours are Monday, Wednesday, and Friday 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., Tuesday, 8 a.m. till 5 p.m. and Saturday, 9 a. m. to 3 p.m. Sports 'N Turf is located at 515 North Reading Road, Ephrata.

Firm Offers Free Grain Storage To Hard-Hit Farmers

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co) — It's been a tough year for farming in Pennsylvania According to the October crop report, the state lost 33 percent of its corn crop, and the soybean harvest is expected to be 36 percent less than a year ago

Drought during the growing season and record rainfall at harvest, have caused grain yield losses of 50 to 75 percent on many farms. Meanwhile, prices for corn and soybeans are at extreme market lows.

The October report confirmed a larger-than-expected U.S. harvest, and yields in the midwestern states have improved since the preharvest forecasts.

Earl Weaver, proprietor of Weaver's Toasted Grains in New Holland, is also involved in farming, and he understands what farmers are facing. That's why the family run facility is offering free storage until May 1, 2000 for farmers selling their own harvested grains. This represents a .22-cent per bushel savings for farmers

"We discussed it as a family We wanted to do something to help the farming community," Weaver said "This was one way we could use what we have here to give farmers some choices about marketing their harvest, so they can decide when the time is right to sell."

Experts suggest that storing under present market conditions makes economic sense, but only if it's done properly to maximize the quality of the harvest. Drought-stressed crops and wet conditions at harvest have predisposed feedgrains to mold problems, making on-farm storage more challenging this year. Weaver's grain cleaning and drying facilities, temperature control, and monitoring present a quality storage opportunity for cash crop farmers.

Free year-round storage is also provided for grain bank corn and beans and through exchange programs with local feed mills when Weaver's processes the grain for feed Grain banking allows farmers to bring their home-grown or harvest-bought grains in the fall and take delivery of toasted corn and soybeans when they need them throughout the year

Weaver's Toasted Grains will buy, bank, or store dry or wet corn The company sells shelled, cracked, and ground corn, but is best known for their unique toasting and flaking process for soybeans and corn Grains can be cleaned when they arrive and are cleaned again when they are toasted. Toasting uses a controlled hot air process to enhance the quality and consistency of the protein and energy derived from corn and soybeans. The process removes dust, fine particles and harmful molds, making the toasted flaked product tastier, more digestible and better for the digestive health of dairy cows, horses and other livestock.

Jay-Lor Offers TMR Feed Mixers

ONTARIO, Canada — Jay-Lor Fabricating Inc., headquartered here, manufactures a complete line of vertical TMR feed mixers.

From their 240 cubic foot model to the new model measuring 700 cubic feet, the mixers offer various options.

Jay-Lor recently participated in trials conducted by the University of Guelph at the Elora Research Station. The trial results of the TMR mixer comparison proved that the TMR ration produced by the company's vertical mixers was the most consistent in nutrient profile.

The fast-cut auger design can rapidly process all feed commodities, including large round and square bales, corn silage, grains, and others.

Recently Jay-Lor has teamed up with Janet Kleinschmidt, ruminant nutritionist. She is a technical editor for Dairy Update Magazine. As part of a new program, Jay-Lor will offer to each new purchaser free nutritional consultation with Kleinschmidt.

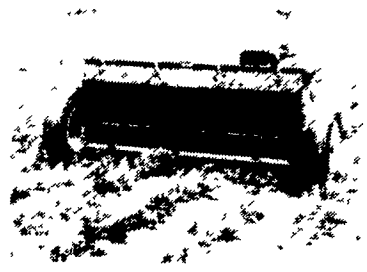
Kleinschmidt recently helped the company in producing a series of information pamphlets that will offer farmers helpful tips and advice on TMR feeding. The information is free through the company's network of dealerships.

Gandy Offers Heavy-Duty Drop Spreaders

OWATONNA, Minn. — Whether needing uniform placement of seeds, chemicals or fertilizer, the Gandy 10T series spreaders offer easy and economical application across 6-, 8-, 10-, or 12-foot spans.

These four widths are available as convenient trailer models, or 3-point hitch with end-wheel drive, or even for mounting with a choice of heavy-duty 12-volt electric motor drive or hydraulic motor drive on a parent implement to provide a one-trip application/incorporation.

On the Gandy 10T series spreaders, the hopper is made of heavy-duty 11-gauge steel with powder-coated finish. The shut-off slide features stainless steel closures. Material feeds through the adjustable openings which are spaced four inches apart and spreads across the standard spreadplate to give sheet-like feeding action. At maximum setting, diamond-shaped openings are 1-1/2 inches wide. Capacity is 1.5 cubic feet per foot of hopper, or approximately 100 pounds of fertilizer per foot of spreader width.



Whether needing uniform placement of seeds, chemicals or fertilizer, the Gandy 10T series spreaders offer easy and economical application across 6-, 8-, 10-, or 12-foot spans.

Trailer and end-wheel drive models feature standard rims for 6:70x15 implement tires, with high-flotation rims available options for 11L15 tires Tires are ordered separately. Deflectors for side-dressing applications are also options.

New Holland's China Joint Venture Receives Government Approval

HARBIN, China — New Holland N.V. (NYSE:NH) announced that the company's joint venture in China has received its business license from the Heilongjiang State Administration for Industry and Commerce of the People's Republic of China.

The license grants Harbin New Holland Beidahuang Tractor Ltd. full permission to begin operations and conduct business in the People's Republic of China.

Speaking on the occasion of the joint venture's first board of directors meeting, New Holland CEO Umberto Quadrino said, "It is indeed an honor to have been awarded this opportunity to participate in such a substantial way in the mechanization of China's cash grain farm economy. We are especially fortunate that our new joint venture is being launched now, on the eve of the 50th anniversary of the founding of the People's Republic of China. This first step toward establishing a full line presence for New Holland in the People's Republic of China is the direct result of the efforts of a dedicated team of professionals from the two partners working together to make our dream a reality."

"During the significant 50th Anniversary of the People's Republic of China, we welcome the glorious moment in which we achieve the successful cooperation on the high horsepower tractor project between New Holland and the Hong Qi Machinery Factory," Wang Jiaxu, vice director of the General Bureau of State Farms of Heilongjiang, told the board of directors. "We would like to express our heartfelt congratulations to this project, which is the achievement of both parties efforts, and the essence of our sincerity in commitment to the principle of equality and mutual benefit. Not only has this project had a good beginning, but the most important point is that another successful cooperative effort between New Holland and us has been established."

At the board of directors meeting, Jean-Marc Perrier was elected chairman and Zhu Xi Guang was elected vice chairman. Under the terms of the joint venture agreement, the positions of chairman and vice chairman will rotate between the partners every four years.

New Holland owns approximately 70 percent of the joint venture with the Heilongjiang Beidahuang State Farm Group holding the remaining 30 percent.

Harbin New Holland is located in Harbin, the capital city of Heilongjiang Province, one of China's most productive agricultural regions. The joint venture will produce New Holland agricultural tractors in the 100-180 horsepower range for sale in the People's Republic of China and for export. Preparation of the factory is scheduled during the coming winter months, with production beginning in the spring of 2000.

The formation of the joint venture was announced in March 1999. In April 1999, New Holland delivered 363 tractors to the province for use during the 1999 season. The tractors were built at New Holland's Basildon, UK Plant. Financing was provided by the Overseas Economic Cooperation Funds of Japan.

Agway Elects Board Officers

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Agway, Inc. announced that Gary K. Van Slyke, Pike, N.Y. and Andrew J. Gilbert, Potsdam, N.Y., have been elected chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of the Agway, Inc. board of directors. They were elected at a board meeting held in Syracuse, N.Y.

Van Slyke was elected to the Agway board in 1994 and has served as vice chairman of the board since 1997. He also serves as a director of Telmark, Agway's lease financing subsidiary. Van Slyke is a partner in a family dairy farm business in western New York.

Gilbert was elected to the Agway board in 1995. He serves on the board's Budget and Audit Committee and director of the Education Committee. He is also a director of Telmark. Gilbert owns and operates a dairy farm in northern New York in partnership with his brother.

Van Slyke replaces Ralph H. Heffner who did not seek re-election as Agway's chairman of the board. Heffner served as chairman since 1987. He will retire from the Agway board when his term as a director expires next year.

XR911 Backhoe: Two In One

CENTREVILLE, New Brunswick — The Thomas XR911 Xtreme Reach provides two backhoes in one. Retracted, the XR911 provides all the advantages of a 9-foot (2 75-meter) backhoe with high breakout to ensure top productivity in the toughest digging conditions

When you need more digging depth, reach or additional loading height, the XR911 fills the bill. A foot-pedal on the operator's platform shoots the dipper out another 2 feet (610 millimeters), turning the XR911 into an 11-foot (3.35-meter) backhoe

The XR911 features smooth operating, two-lever control, and outrigger type stabilizers to provide maximum stability in the roughest terrain. Additionally, the XR911 mounts to a loader's quick-tach system in only seconds. It also comes with a choice of four bucket sizes

Wayne County 4-H Market Beef Steer Feeding Program Begins Nov. 20

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.) — The 1999-2000 Wayne County 4-H Market Beef Steer Feeding Program will be starting later this fall.

This 4-H animal science project is open to all young people in Wayne County with an interest in feeding, caring for, and managing a 4-H market beef steer.

To meet the 4-H membership requirements, the young person must be at least 8 years old by January 1, 2000 and not have passed their 19th birthday as of that same date. The young person must also join one of the 4-H agricultural or community clubs in Wayne County.

If you are selecting a beef steer calf for the first time, here are a few tips to keep in mind:

1. Select a feeder calf that currently weighs 550 pounds or more. These would be feeder calves born in March through April 1999.

2. The Wayne County 4-H Market Beef Steer Feeding Program has established a minimum qualifying weight for the Wayne County Fair and the Wayne County Junior Livestock Sale. The minimum weights are based on the breed of the sire of the calf. Any feeder calf sired by a British-breed sire, such as Black Angus, Red Angus, Shorthorn, Polled Hereford, Horned Hereford, etc., needs to attain a minimum weight of 1,050 pounds when they are weighed in at the Wayne County Fair, in August 2000. Any feeder calf sired by a Continental-breed sire, such as Charolais, Simmental, etc., needs to attain a minimum weight of 1,200 pounds when they are weighed in at the Wayne County Fair. There is no maximum weight established.

3. The 1999-2000 Wayne County 4-H Market Beef Steer Feeding Program will involve more than 250 days of feeding grain, dry hay, or ensiled forages plus a lot of clean, fresh water plus salt and minerals. A rule of thumb in feeding grain is to feed the steer calf at a rate of 2 percent of its body weight. An example would be: (550-pound calf X .02 = about 11 pounds of grain per day). A realistic weight gain for these 4-H market steers is a range of from 2 to 3 pounds per day. Steers gaining in this range of daily gain should easily attain the set minimum weight for the 2000 Wayne County Fair and the Wayne County Junior Livestock Sale.

4. Try to select a well-bred feeder calf. This can be either a purebred or a cross-bred calf. Do not select a feeder calf which is the result of a dairy breed - beef breed cross such as a Holstein-Angus or Holstein-Hereford, etc. Only 100 percent beef-blood calves should be selected for this 4-H project.

5. Some of the type traits/characteristics of an ideal 4-H market feeder steer will include a calf that is well started showing growthiness, good skeletal growth, and adequate sign of muscle development, especially in the hindquarters. The calf should have a strong, level topline, some width and depth of loin, a long, deep, somewhat thick hindquarter, good feet and legs, a trim front end, smooth shoulders, a thin middle, well-sprung ribs, a long, clean neck and a deep forerib.

6. The 1999-2000 Wayne County 4-H Market Beef Steer Feeding Program will start on Saturday, Nov. 20, at the Wayne County Fairgrounds between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. On this day, all of the 4-H market feeder steer calves will be weighed, given two eartags, freeze-branded, treated for internal and external parasites, and given a growth promotant (optional).

7. Each 4-H member will be allowed to eartag, freeze-brand, etc., two 4-H market feeder steer calves for the 1999-2000 Wayne County 4-H Market Beef Steer Feeding Program. At the time of the deadline for 4-H entries for the 2000 Wayne County Fair, the 4-H'er will have to select one of the steers as his or her 4-H exhibit. This steer will then be shown in the 4-H market beef steer shows and then sold through the Wayne County Junior Livestock Sale.

8. 4-H members enrolled in this 4-H animal science project will acquire valuable skills in showmanship, fitting, feeding, management, marketing, livestock selection, patience, responsibility, sportsmanship and animal health practices. The 4-H member will also be required to maintin a 4-H project record book of all expenses, etc. for the 4-H beef steer.

For more information, call or stop by the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office at the Wayne County Courthouse, 925 Court St., Honesdale, PA, (570) 253-5970 ext. 239.

Purchase Heavy Duty Rock Collection Equipment From BINKLEY & HURST BROS. Today! Remove Field Rock & Save Your Equipment. Check Our Finance Plans.

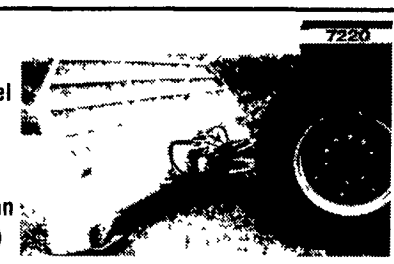
In the Degelman tradition of quality rock removal equipment, here is the RR1500 rock rake, another example of Degelman's continuing commitment to excellence

The RR1500 rock rake includes a unique auto-fold system which provides safe, easy transport no wider than most tractors (8 feet in transport position) with full use of the 14 foot width in the working position And with hydraulic angling, it can take full advantage of the 10 to 30 degree angling range

Degelman Rock Rakes are excellent machines for grooming fairways and conditioning soil for the construction of golf courses. It leaves a beautiful final finish preparing the course for seeding They are also used for reclaiming gravel on gravel roads And the heavy duty construction and quality workmanship means that it is built to last.

Degelman

From Small Tractors to Large 4 Wheel Drive Sizes (Many Uses for a Heavy Duty Degelman Dozer Blade)



From leveling Silage in Bunks and Grading Excavation to Snow Removal, See Binkley & Hurst For Your Needs!

The SIGNATURE 6000 may be the only rock picker you'll ever need This is the most rugged rock picker on the market Some of the SIGNATURE 6000 features include

Solid Shaft Grill Tines with Replaceable Grill Tips - This modern grill is easier to maintain, has longer life giving you less down time The unique grill provides five feet of clean sifting and virtually jamless performance

Grated Hopper Bottom - We use spring steel straps in the hopper, engineered to bounce back in shape

Hydraulic Drive - The most popular drive on rock pickers is hydraulic which is standard on the 6000 We have incorporated a relief valve to take away the shock when disengaging the drive

Reel Assembly - The three paddle reel has a large diameter, hard sufaced teeth and heavy duty paddles

Flotation Tires - The 16 5L x 16.1 flotation tires are standard equipment and are a must to reduce soil compaction

Swing Pole - Easy to maneuver in both working or transport position

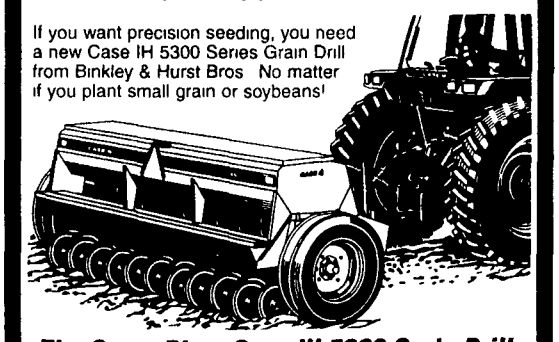
New Case IH Grain Drills In Stock For Quick Delivery! The Goal: Uniform Seed Distribution

If you want precision seeding, you need a new Case IH 5300 Series Grain Drill from Binkley & Hurst Bros No matter if you plant small grain or soybeans!



The Game Plan: Case IH 5300 Grain Drill

Designed for precision planting in solid or extra-narrow row patterns to maximize yields

- Exclusive diagonal-lipped fluted-roll seed cups ensure uniform seed distribution
- Close-coupled maneuverability
- Large-capacity seed hopper to cover extra acres between refills

A Special Feature For All Case IH Grain Drills

Fluted Roll Feed Cup Assemblies Save Seed and Save Time A known fact that Case IH die-cast zinc alloy feed cups are superior to other competitive brands Long life comes from oil-impregnated molded sintered metal insters act as a positive bearing surface to surround and support the fluted roll

Large throat clearance allows the handling of big seeds and prevents seed damage

Fluted roll is precision-molded and won t freeze up during the idle periods

Shut off block is molded of steel and delivers consistent cup to cup seeding accuracy Exclusive tapered metered edge at the bottom of the feed cup provides unexcelled seeding accuracy even seed flow, and more uniform spacing

For replacement parts for your existing drill, buy Case IH quality from our Parts Dept. Now! Precision engineered to fit your grain drill exactly!

And you get more than a precision grain drill You can count on us for genuine, value-priced parts professional and reliable service support, and flexible financing

CASE IH PRODUCT SUPPORT COMMITTED TO EVERY PART

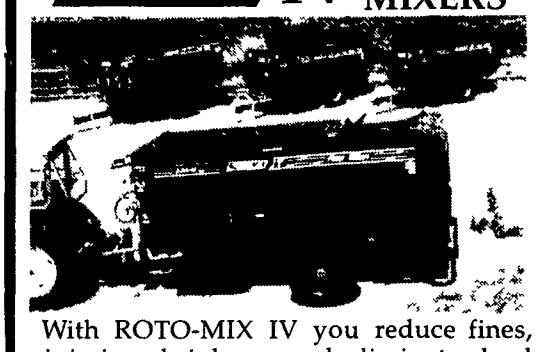
ROTO-MIX IV FEED MIXERS



With ROTO-MIX IV you reduce fines, minimize shrinkage, and eliminate dead spots. The gentle tumbling action mixes fragile flaked and high-moisture ingredients without grinding, resulting in a fluffier, more nutritional ration.

The ROTO-MIX end-to-end. . side-to-side mixing system provides the most thorough TMR available, ensuring that your cattle will consume a balanced ration of nutrients in every pound of feed they eat

MF 8680 CONVENTIONAL AND MF 8780 ROTARY COMBINES

Massey Ferguson Combines are legendary for their productivity and reliability.

They still are. Today's MF 8680, with its 62" wide high-inertia cylinder and unique cleaning system is the most advanced and productive conventional design you can buy.

In addition, the MF 8780 Rotary redefines efficiency, sample quality, and reliability with the largest rotor, and simplest combine design in its class.

Stop in and see today's two new legends in combines.

Top Producers Choose Knight!
Congratulations to the La-Foster Farm

Terry and Gerald Foster are very proud of their record-breaking cow, Lucy, and rightly so. She produced 75,260 pounds of milk in her last lactation. They are also pleased with their Knight Reel Auggie® mixers, which, combined with the Foster's excellent management practices, have propelled the La-Foster herd average to the #1 milk production status in North Carolina. There is no comparison to the complete, palatable blend from a Knight Reel Auggie, with its patented reel and auger blending combination. Why else would the La-Foster Farm choose only Knight to feed their record-setting herd?

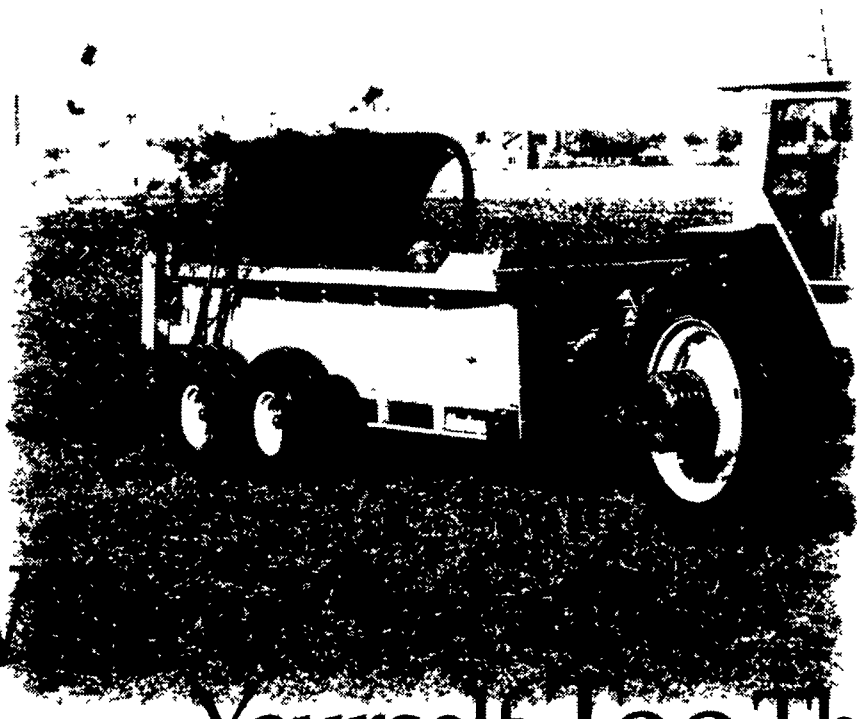
Match A Spreader To Your Needs



W Yourself Too Thin

Get Unmatched Flexibility At A Great Price.

With eight sizes to choose from and a wide variety of options, it's easy to see how the New Idea® 3700 Series Spreaders meet the needs of any operation Their aggressive, main beater paddles are strategically spaced and angled to shred a wide range of material while giving you a consistent spread pattern

Culvert-grade galvanizing over one-piece, copper-bearing steel sides provide a barrier against rust and corrosion And for hauling long distances, the truck-mount option proves to be the safest, most economical way to transport large amounts of material

To see how simple it is to customize your spreading operation, contact your AGCO® New Idea dealer today You'll be surprised how much time and money you'll save with the New Idea 3700 Series Spreaders

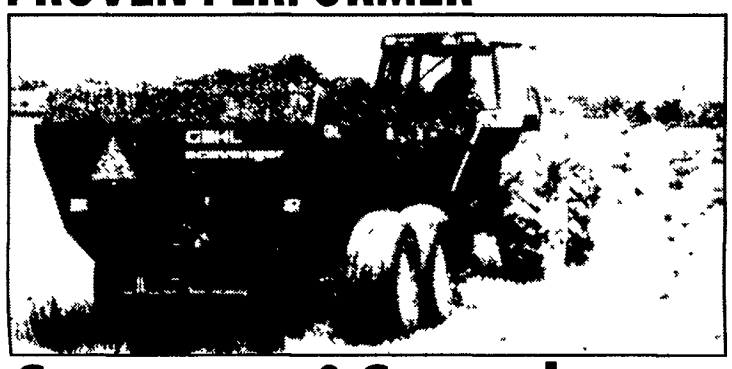
GEHL®

PROVEN PERFORMER



Scavenger® Spreader

Gehl's Scavenger® Spreader delivers the performance you need year after year, with increased durability and outstanding application control. All thanks to the following features

- Heavy-duty round core auger with segmented paddles to blend manure. Powered both up and down to ram through heavy loads and break up bridging
- Special "V" tank design to handle solid, heavy bedded, semi-solid, self-leveling and liquid manure
- Adjustable auger and expeller speeds spread more types of manure
- Variflow™ discharge featuring square-tooth expeller paddles for smooth, even spreading at the rate you choose
- Improved drive system with heavier final drive chains and enhanced idler system

The #1 Name In Feedmaking

Gehl Mix-All® portable grinder-mixers have been leading the industry for over 35 years. Now available with Gehl's famous hammermill or a commercial-grade roller mill to produce the best possible feed for your livestock

- Total hydraulic control - Self-contained hydraulic system allows infinite speeds to power the discharge conveyor, unloading auger and in-feed attachments
- Remote controls - Operate the unloading conveyor from the tractor seat or from the rear of the machine
- Electronic scales - For precise ration weighing
- Customize your machine - With a wide variety of options and attachments

NEW HYBRIDS. NEW PAYMENT PLANS. NEW $AVING$

Innovation Drives Performance

Hoffman Seeds introduces a new century of performance.

Now's the best time to plan next year's seed corn purchases and save...during Hoffman Seeds' Hybrid Performance seed corn program.

- Choose from 13 new hybrids for the year 2000, each the result of our ongoing research to assure you top yields for your soil and growing conditions.
- Choose from 3 flexible payment plans, including a deferred plan for qualified buyers.
- Choose big savings—While supplies last, when you purchase 10 units of NK® Brand seed corn, you can get 12 units...2 FREE for every 10 you buy. That's like a 20% reduction in your seed bill.

For more details, see your Hoffman Seeds' dealer today and enjoy a new century of performance.

Everlast Roofing

Everlast II is galvanized heavier like old times, it is heat formed to prevent paint cracks, it is cut while hot to prevent early edge rust, Everlast paint is harder so it won't scratch as easy won't bend or buckle as easy because of stronger design, laps are tighter and virtually invisible nails screws seal better because ribs fit tighter to fastener heads, zinc phosphate is used under paint which is much better than the chromate most competitors use Crisp and attractive Sharp colors Excellent for houses and barns Double dipped galvanized is proven best for animals Standing seam is ideal for houses Low prices, fast delivery

Attention
Dairy, Swine & Poultry Producers!
New Products Now Available...

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer these products to meet your nutritional needs Manufacturing these products ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

GOLDEN PRO 46 XP
This natural, mechanically extruded and expelled soybean product is experiencing great acceptance with local dairymen A course golden colored meal with a 6% fat content, Golden Pro 46 XP is extremely palatable Golden Pro 46 XP is a natural way to bring the value of high by-pass protein into diets that require a lower fat level

GOLDEN MEAL 40
An 18 percent fat content along with a 40 percent crude protein makes this mechanically extruded meal product a valuable component in a variety of rations Full fat content gives you a high level of digestible energy, while high temperature extruding ruptures the oil cells for better nutritional absorbtions

CRUDE SOYBEAN OIL
A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications A natural alternative to animal fats, this oil provides needed energy in various rations

To make these products available, and to help you utilize your home raised soybeans Keystone Mills announces its

Soybean Exchange Program

As manufacturers and distributers of Golden Pro 46 XP and Golden Meal 40, we are anxious for you to try our products We are offering a soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products

FOUR SIMPLE STEPS TO SUCCESS

Farm For Profit Step 1

ACHIEVE
- Contains nutrients and feeders which aid in sustaining microorganisms in the soil

REMEDY
- Contains nutrients and micronutrients which aid in sustaining microorganisms in the soil

TANK MIXING'
STEP 2 PLANT NUTRITION
& STEP 1·

We have found be adding 12 8 oz of Remedy and a small amount of Achieve per acre to the recommended amount of Farm For Profit Step 2 True Solution Starter Fertilizer and applying directly on the seed or in the seed cradle we got outstanding results

PLANT NUTRITION

FARM FOR PROFIT TRUE SOLUTION STARTER FERTILIZER
- Near neutral pH
- 100% available
- Root zone placement
- Low salt index
- Foliar Feeding

Farm For Profit has established their own standard for quality Unlike many liquid fertilizers Farm For Profit True Solution Starter Fertilizer is a solution It is not just particles suspended in liquid Each drop contains the exact N-P-K ratio of the standard formulation Farm For Profit liquid fertilizer is consistent and stable and won't settle out It handles easily It can be stored indefinitely When it is applied, it flows evenly and cleanly Farm For Profit True Solution Starter Fertilizer meets our standard for quality

VEGETABLE OIL

1 Encapsulates the chemical
2 Helps generate uniform droplet size
3 Greatly reduces chemical evaporation
4 Reduces chemical drift
5 Increases the coverage because of its spreading and sticking ability
6 Reduces chemical wash off
7 Gives you better control of the chemicals

One of Farm For Profit's main concerns is the level of soil and water pollution found today Our goal is to remove as much petroleum base material and farm chemical from the soil as possible Farm For Profit Step 3 Vegetable Oil gives us a means to reduce the level of both petroleum base materials and farm chemicals

Farm For Profit Step 4
TRAINED FIELD PERSONNEL

The Farm For Profit Authorized Distributor or Dealer in Your Area Will
- Explain the total Farm For Profit program to you
- Explain the best fertilizer program for your operation
- Suggest ways to improve the efficiency of your chemical program
- Explain to you what other farmers have been doing to cut their operating expenses while maintaining or increasing their production output

Farmers Helping Farmers

FALL SAFEGUARD DEWORMER PROMOTION

During the months of September, October and November purchase a minimum of 3 bags of Safeguard Dewormer and earn a free Alliance Animal Health soft sided Koozie Cooler.

NUTRASOUND FOR MOLDS AND MYCOTOXINS

Area testing laboratories have confirmed the presence of molds and mycotoxins in many of this year's forages and high moisture grains. Even Aflatoxins, normally associated with crops grown in the south, have been found in forages produced in this area.

The answer for improved performance is not binding agents such as charcoal or bentonite, which bind not only the mycotoxins, but also many essential minerals and vitamins. Nutrasound is a product that attacks the cell wall of the mycotoxin modifying its chemical structure. Nutrasound is effective against all known types of mycotoxins.

For the cost of screening a sample of mycotoxins, you can put Nutrasound to work in your ration. Look for the signs: decreased and variable dry matter intakes, low-level diarrhea, poor reproduction and abortions to name a few. Call your local Consolidated Nutrition dealer today for more details.
